TWO DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

Arrival of the Asia off Cape Race.

Our Conscription Not Considered a Menace to England.

No Interruption of General Amity Between the Two Countries.

RUSSIA PREPARING FOR WAR.

CAPE RACE, Monday, Aug. 17.

The steamship Asia, from Liverpool on the 8th, via Queenstown on the 9th inst., passed this point at 9 o'clock on Sunday evening. Her dates are two days later than those already received.

The Asia reports: Passed, on the 8th inst., off Great Ormes Head, steamship Persia, bound into Liverpool. All on board of her were well.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The London Morning Post having repeated the statement of the New-York Herald, that the Federal Conscription is avowedly a menace to England, the Globe announces, apparently upon authority, that no authentic intelligence has been received giving the assertion the slightest assurance of probability. The Globe continues:

"Although perhaps the American Government expects from our own action interference with the fitting out of war vessels, which the law of England does not appear to sanction, yet there is no interruption of the general amity between the two, and in face of the language held toward us, in the name of the authorities at Washington, it is, we may say, impossible they could have made any such declaration menacing us as that set forth."

The Confederate loan rallied, on the 6th inst., to 23 @21 discount, but relapsed on the 7th to 27@25 discount.

Nine sample bales of cotton from Java, a new source, had reached Rotterdam. Half of it was grown from New-Orleans seed. It is reported equal in many respects to middling fair American. The other half was grown from East India seed, and falls below this standard.

The Directors of the Atlantic Telegraph Company received, on the 25th of July, tenders from several different firms for the manufacture and laying of the cable, and referred them to a Committee consisting of two eminent mechanics and two distinguished electricians, namely: WM. FAIRBORN and JOSEPH WHITEWORTH; Prof. WHEATSTONE and Prof. THOMPSON, who will report which application shall be accepted.

A Committee of Eight, appointed by the English Government to investigate the question of a submarine telegraph, had signed a certificate favorable to the laying and working of the Atlantic Telegraph Cable.

The London Times says:

"It is said that the three Powers have agreed to send a common note to Russia, to be accompanied by separate dispatches from each to their respective Representatives, and that unless Russia makes some sign of yielding, a diplomatic rupture will be announced as impending. In the common note, whatever course the mere forms of negotiation may take, the reality consists in a growing but not very threatening antagonism between France and Russia, which will leave England a neutral though not an unsympathetic spectator."

An iron-clad for Russia, building in England, had been hurried off to Russia incomplete, in view of eventualities.

RUSSIA.

A dispatch from Warsaw states that in pursuance of orders from St. Petersburgh a Council of War had been held in that city.

At its termination, notice was given to the Warsaw and Vienna Railway to the effect that for the space of one week they should suspend public traffic and prepare all their carriages for the conveyance of troops.

AUSTRIA.

At a Cabinet Council at Vienna, the reply to be sent to Russia was taken into consideration.

The contents of the Austrian and French notes are not known. It is believed, however, that they are by no means identical, although the six points are maintained in both.

FRANCE.

The Paris Bourse had again been influenced by the energetic efforts of the war party. The Rentes declined on the 7th instant ¾ per cent.

Late advices asserted that the Emperor was about to review the army of Paris and the National Guards.

GERMANY.

The invitation of the Emperor of Austria to the German Sovereigns to meet in conference on German affairs, at Frankfort, had been accepted by the Kings of Saxony and Wurtemburg; but there is a report that the King of Prussia had declined the invitation. The Emperor had resolved to admit newspaper reporters to the Conference.

INDIA AND CHINA.

The Calcutta mails are forwarded per the Asia. News anticipated.

LATEST NEWS VIA QUEENSTOWN.

LONDON, Sunday, Aug. 9.

The advices from America by the steamship Persia, are regarded as more favorable to the South, and the protraction of the war is calculated upon.

The Confederate cotton loan has advanced, and closed yesterday at 24@22 discount.

PARIS, Tuesday, Aug. 4, 1863.

Rumors are current that the greater part of the Ministry have formed a coalition against M. DROUYN DE LHUYS.

It is reported that M. FOULD, who is said to be at the head of the cabal, thinks M. DROUYN DE LHUYS leading the policy of France in a direction which must conduct to war.

It is thought probable this question will be raised in the Council next Thursday, at which the Emperor will preside, and that His Majesty will then decide between the contending parties.

It seems hardly probable that the Emperor will disavow M. DROUYN DE LHUYS, and if not the resignation of M. FOULD is thought to be not impossible.

ST. PETERSBURGH, Saturday, Aug. 1.

The Invalide Russe announces that the Emperor ALEXANDER before his departure for Finland, reviewed the artillery of the Guard upon the Champ de Mars at Krasnoeselskoi. The Emperor was enthusiastically cheered by the troops. He examined the equipments of the military with great care, appearing to pay special attention to the performances of the rifled guns, expressing himself highly satisfied with their accuracy and extent of range. Before taking his departure for Finland he also inspected the fortifications at Cronstadt.

WARSAW, Friday, July 31.

The following items are derived from the Czas:

Arrests in all parts of Poland have greatly increased. Oppression has become terrorism. Furious indignation is expressed in official circles against Austria, who is accused of having betrayed Russia for the second time.

Rumors are current that the population of the provinces bordering on the Volga are showing themselves more and more discontented with the Government at St. Petersburgh. Gen. TEMACHEW has been sent into these provinces with discretionary powers, in consequence of these symptoms.

The brutalities and outrages committed by Gen. MOURAVIEFF in Lithuania exceed all bounds. Men, women and children are everywhere being brutally flogged with whips, and often without the slightest cause. Two officers named TOKONTINE and MASSINA have frightfully flogged within the last two days M. JAKOWSKI, the Mayor of the village of Klimaszewiniza, and his little daughter, in trying to defend her father, was savagely beaten.

Prince [illegible]GUNSTEIN has signalized himself by similar exploits. He gave orders for the arrest of an old man, eighty years old. M. LEMPICHI, a Judge, and a landowner, in the village of Wierzbowo; of M. ZIMYENSKI, a landowner; and of M. KRASZEW, Register to the Judge of Szeznezna. These three persons were brought in on foot, bound to horses, notwithstanding their age and social position, amidst the jeers and insults of the Russian soldiery.

The most horrible and revolting circumstance of recent occurrences took place in a forest near Lonisa. A party of fifty young men, mostly students from college, on their way to join the insurgents, were surprised by a body of Cossacks, commanded by an officer named ZAWISTOWSKI. The Poles were unarmed, and did not offer the least resistance to their captors. The Muscovites nevertheless stripped them naked, bound them to trees, and then murdered them in cold blood with circumstances of the most brutal barbarity. The eyes of some were torn out, others had their limbs broken, while the rest were actually disemboweled. The cries and shrieks of these unfortunate victims are described as the most heartrending.

IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

Fulminations Against the North by the French.

Guerrilla Fighting and Assassinations.

A Reign of Terror in the Capital.

SAN FRANCISCO, Tuesday, Aug. 18.

The steamer St. Louis brings, viâ Acapulco, dates from the City of Mexico up to July 22.

Gen. FOREY was issuing decrees daily.

The French and Mexican newspapers urge the recognition of the Southern Confederacy. They state that France will recognize the Confederacy. Mexican jealousy and prejudice have been provoked against the United States.

The Government paper says that the Northern States are for JUAREZ, while the Confederacy is for Mexican monarchy; and that everything looks to the immediate recognition of the Confederacy by Mexico.

Guerrillas were fighting on the roads leading to the City of Mexico. The Mexicans make no prisoners, but slay all. They wage a war of extermination.

Numerous assassinations had taken place in the Capital, of persons sympathizing with the French.

The triumvirate Government was daily imprisoning and shooting persons refusing to take the oath of allegiance to the Empire. Mexicans had been publicly flogged for refusing quarters to French officers.

One Mexican lady named RUBIO received two hundred lashes for refusing to receive French officers into her house. Her husband offered to pay as a fine his weight in silver; but FOREY insisted on making an example of her.

The foreign Ministers declined to remove to San Luis on the offer of JUAREZ to protect that transit.

Meeting of Odd-Fellows.

ROCHESTER, Tuesday, Aug. 18.

The annual session of the Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows of Northern New-York convened here to-day, and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: CHARLES V. CLARK, of New-York, Worthy Grand Master; William Madden, of Troy, Deputy Grand Master; John H. Seekreg, of Ithaca, Grand Warden: George A. Gardner, of Syracuse, Grand Treasurer; Rev. J. Dunbar Houghton, of Jefferson, Worthy Grand Chaplain; John S. Dickerson, of Albany, Grand Marshal; William B. Monroe, of Utica, Worthy Grand Conductor; John B. Feezlear, of Orleans, Worthy Grand Guardian; Benjamin Thomas, of Rochester, Worthy Grand Herald. Nearly 400 delegates are present. They will go on an excursion on Lake Ontario to-morrow, and will adjourn on Thursday.

THE DRAFT TO-DAY.

Preparations to Preserve Order.

The draft in the Sixth district will commence this morning at 10 o'clock, at No. 155 Sixth avenue, under direction of Provost-Marshal FARR, and will be publicly conducted. The first drawings will be from the Ninth ward, and the others will follow in numerical order. Those parties who were drawn on the occasion of the first attempt at drafting, are released from all obligations in consequence, and will again take their chances on the wheel with others.

The preparations to subdue, at the very outset, any symptoms of disorder are ample. Upwards of 20,000 soldiers are in New-York and its immediate vicinity, and can, at short notice, be brought into service. Gloves will be thrown aside by Gen. DIX, if occasion requires, and he will deal promptly and sternly with any indications of disturbance. Those who first "unchain the tiger" will find themselves its quickest victims. The eloquent, earnest and decided address of Gen. DIX has had a marked effect upon the disorderly element. He is known to be in earnest; he is known to be loath to adopt any extreme measures, but he is known also to be the man to adopt them, and uncomprisingly, the very moment that occasion requires.

Throughout the city and particularly in the district that is to be the scene of the first draft, the impression conveyed was of deep suppressed excitement and intense anxiety in reference to the events of to-day, mingled with the hope that no rash or untoward act, no misunderstanding, no hasty, inconsiderate step may mar public tranquility.

It is to be regretted, however, that the feeling against the draft is again developing itself, even though in the harmless way of threats and denunciation. In the District recently most infected, there was yesterday unpleasant indications. A very large number of arms were stolen and secreted during the late riots, and, in the many groggeries in the vicinity referred to, it was openly avowed that they would soon be used. This class of malcontents who are most prominent are evidently awed, however, by the preparations made to meet any overt act. That there will be disturbance to-day, or any attempt at one, does not seem likely. True the fever of the past month has to a certain extent returned, but we adhere to the belief that it will not so far develop itself as to require more than Homeopathic treatment.

POLICE ARRANGEMENTS.

The entire Police force has been under special orders since Sunday last; the possibility existing that on the first knowledge of the intended opening of the Draft, some general surprise might be attempted in the City. It is not permitted, nor would it be prudent to disclose the exact arrangements that have been adopted, but may with propriety inform the public that all the Station-houses will be held and guarded by our own Municipal, without the direct aid of either Government or State troops. However, upon the outbreak of any disturbance too powerful for the Police to quell at once, the State troops of this locality, sustained by others recently ordered hither, will sustain them. Should this assistance likewise prove inadequate, the State authorities will call in the regulars, and the whole combined force of the authorities will thus be brought to bear. In the meanwhile the usual Police service of the streets will be performed by the ordinary patrols. In case of really dangerous disorder, the signal for the assembling and concentration will be given according to previous understanding, by ten strokes on all the alarm-bells in the City sounded simultaneously after the first alarm emanating from the bells of the District in which the disturbance may arise. At this juncture, more especially, in addition to its activity throughout the day, the City telegraph will be called into active play in transmitting orders. At stated intervals prearranged, this medium will serve to transmit reports from every District of the Metropolis to the Central Office. At latter point a large stock of hand-grenades (some 2,000) and fixed ammunition has been collected, and other supplies of the same kind have been furnished to the various Station-houses, at each of which a Sergeant and squad of men have been instructed in their proper management and use. Rifles and revolvers have also been provided in ample quantity and for skillful hands.

THE PROVOST-MARSHAL

will rely at his office and at the headquarters of his assistants entirely upon the protection of Government troops, which it is understood will consist chiefly of detachments of the Eighth regiment United States Regular infantry, and the Invalid Corps, the State troops and the Police being excluded from this service.

NAVAL FORCES.

A squadron of gunboats and other armed vessels of the United States Navy, the names and position divulged, will be stationed in both rivers and the upper Bay, ready to convey troops and convoy vessels, from point to point, in furtherance of Gen. CANBY'S orders, and to act as any emergency may require.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS.

In addition to the large forces distributed among the fortresses on the different shores and islands of the Bay, the Eighth regiment, United States infantry, with full ranks, and one or two companies of the Fifth artillery, with three rifled guns, will hold the battery and the adjacent streets and spaces. This force will be weakened only, if at all, by the withdrawal of such detachments as may be called to the offices of the Provost-Marshal for their defence.

The public buildings, including the Sub-Treasury Custom-House, Government warehouses, will all be carefully guarded, and if needs be, United States marines will be landed to assist in defending them.

THE STATE MILITIA

of the City are by no means inactive, and among these, the Seventh regiment will, as usual, be conspicuous. Pursuant to special orders, that corps assembled at 7 o'clock last evening in their armory in full fatigue dress, light marching order to receive instructions. A strong representation was present and hailed the remarks of their officers with heartiness. Lieut.-Col. JAMES PRICE will have command in the absence of Col. In Brooklyn all the regiments of the National Guard were ordered out, and were and are held in readiness at their respective armories to meet any call that may be made upon them.

GEN. CANBY'S SPECIAL ORDER.

In a circular defining the duties of the United States forces distributed in this City and in the various posts about the harbor, Gen. CANBY says:

"Their duties are limited to the defence of the forts, and the protection of public property and of the officers of the General Government in the performance of their legal duties. The duty of maintaining order and protecting the property and rights of private individuals devolves upon the Municipal and State authorities, but the troops of the United States will be held in readiness to render any assistance that may be called for by proper authority, or be rendered necessary by the inability of the civil authorities to accomplish these ends.

If officers of the General Government, and by comity, of the State and Municipal Governments, in the performance of their legitimate functions, are assailed by lawless violence, it will be the duty of the troops to protect them. If they are charged with the protection of public property, public buildings or other valuable interests, it will be their duty to defend them to the last extremity. If called upon by the civil authorities to aid in the maintenance of order, or the enforcement of the laws, the aid will be rendered promptly, cheerfully and efficiently.

The troops that have been brought to the City, and who may be called upon to aid in the maintenance of order and the enforcement of the laws, must themselves set the example of order y and soldierly conduct; and the attention of all officers and men is especially directed to this point.

The movements of troops to distant parts of the City, or to points in its neighborhood will be made, as far as practicable, by water; and for this purpose the Quartermaster's Department will keep a sfficient number of steamers in constant readiness to move to any point. These steamers, if not armed, will be convoyed by armed steamers."

PROCLAMATION BY GOV. SEYMOUR.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, Aug. 18, 1863.

I have received information that the draft is about to be made in the Cities of New-York and Brooklyn, and I understand that there is danger of disorderly and riotous attacks upon those who are engaged in executing the law of Congress.

I cannot believe that any considerable number of citizens are disposed to renew the shameful and sad scenes of the past month, in which the lives of so many, as well of the innocent as of the guilty, were destroyed. Our Courts are now consigning to severe punishment many of those who were then guilty of acts destructive of the lives and property of their fellow-citizens. These events should teach all that real or imaginary wrongs cannot be corrected by unlawful violence. The liberties of our country and the rights of our citizens can only be preserved by a just regard for legal obligations, and an acquiescence in the decision of judicial tribunals.

While I believe it would have been a wise and humane policy to have procured a judicial decision with regard to the constitutionality of the Conscription Act, at an early day and by a summary process, yet the failure to do this in no degree justifies any violent opposition to an act of Congress. Until it is set aside by the decision of judicial tribunals, it must be obeyed like any other act of the State or National Legislature.

The following rule of duty in this respect was laid down in the Farewell Address of ANDREW JACKSON. This view has always been accepted by the friends of our Union, and the upholders of our Constitution:

"Unconstitutional or oppressive laws may no doubt be passed by Congress, either from erroneous views or the want of due consideration. If they are in reach of judicial authority, the remedy is easy and peaceful; and if, from the character of the law, it is an abuse of power not within the control of the judiciary, then free discussion and calm appeals to reason and to the justice of the people, will not fail to redress the wrong. But until the law shall be declared void by the courts, or repealed by Congress, no individual, or combination of individuals, can be justified in resisting its execution.

The antagonistic doctrine that men may rightfully resist laws opposed to their own ideas of right or duty, has not only led to great disorders and violence, but is one of the chief causes of the destructive civil war which has wasted the blood and treasure of our people. Disregard for the sacredness of the Constitution, for the majesty of the Law, and for the decisions of the Judiciary, is at this time the greatest danger which threatens American liberty. This spirit of disloyalty must be put down. It is inconsistent with social order and social security, destructive to the safety of persons and property, and subversive of the liberty of the citizen and the freedom of the Nation. Those who fear that there are designs in any quarter to overthrow the rights of the citizen, or to obstruct the accustomed administration of our laws, or to usurp any power in violation of constitutional restraints, should bear in mind that all acts of violence, all public disorders pave the way for these very usurpations, and that they will be regarded with satisfaction by those who for any cause may wish to destroy either the power or rights of our National or State Governments.

The Constitution and statutes of the State and nation contain ample remedies for all wrongs which may be committed either by rulers or citizens, and those who wish to preserve their rights or to punish offenders, whether in public or in private life, should themselves carefully perform their duty, abstain from all illegal acts, generously support the Government, and then calmly and resolutely claim their rights. I again repeat the warning which I gave to you during the riotous proceeding of the past month, that "the only opposition to the conscription which can be allowed is an appeal to the courts.

The right of every citizen to make such an appeal will be maintained, and the decision of the Courts must be respected and obeyed by rulers and people alike. No other course is consistent with the maintenance of the laws, the peace and order of the City, and the safety of its inhabitants.

"Riotous proceedings must, and shall, be put down. The laws of the State of New-York must be enforced, its peace and order maintained, and property or all citizens protected at any and every hazard. The rights of every citizen will be properly guarded, and defended by the chief magistrate of the State."

I hereby admonish all judicial and executive officers, whose duty it is to inforce the law and preserve public order, that they take vigorous and effective measures to put down any riotous or unlawful assemblages; and if they find their power insufficient for that purpose, to call upon the military in the manner pointed out by the Statutes of the State. If these measures should prove insufficient, I shall then exert the full power of the State, in order that the public order may be preserved and the persons and property of the citizens be fully protected.

HORATIO SEYMOUR.

The Draft in the Second Ward.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Aug. 15, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The injustice of the draft, and particularly toward the Second Ward of this City, being brought forward by the Hon. Judge Advocate of our State to show the partiality of the Conscription act, as carried out by the Provost-Marshal, permit me to explain that, instead of an injustice being done, (under the circumstances the Government requiring great haste in obtaining the requisite number of men to fill up the army of the Union,) that the enrolling of the names of blind, lame, aliens, non-residents, &c., does not require certain districts to furnish more men than its required quota; but taking into consideration the rules of chance, only the exact number required will be drawn; taking the Second Ward for example, viz:

National enrollment	1,746
Number to be drawn, excluding the fifty per cent	349
Number of residents according to the census of 1860	639
Non-residents, aliens, &c., to make up the number to the National enrollment	1,107—1,746

It is not to be supposed that the full number required according to the National enrollment, 349, will be drawn out of the actual residents of the ward, viz., 639, but that only its proportion, one-fifth, 128, and that the balance will be obtained out of non-residents, aliens, &c., one-fifth of 1,107—221—who, according to the orders of the Provost-Marshal, only have to prove the fact to obtain a release, leaving the 128 residents of the ward actually liable, which agrees with the honorable Judge-Advocate's statement.

In consideration of the migratory habits of the population of our City, and the many devices used to escape enrollment, I believe, and I know none can think otherwise, that enrolling all (and exempting none in the enrollment) where the Provost-Marshal distinctly says that only one-fifth will be drawn, and no more, under this call to fill up any deficiency, no injustice is done to those really liable. In regard to the 50 per cent. extra drawn to fill up any deficiency the same rule will apply.

Yours, respectfully, C. C. O.

The Constitutionality of the Draft.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A writer signing himself "An American" has requested you to publish the section of the Constitution which plainly gives authority to pass a drafting law. Permit me to direct the attention of your readers to the historical fact, that when NAPOLEON was overthrown, and President MADISON feared that England, having her hands free, would turn her whole strength against the United States, Mr. MONROE, then Secretary of War, prepared a bill to order a draft throughout the United States, with the approval of President MADISON. All the friends of Mr. MADISON—that is, the Democrats—supported in Congress the drafting bill: among others, CHARLES INGERSOLL, the father of Mr. INGERSOLL, who is now disputing the constitutionality of the present drafting law in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

The debates in Congress ought to be referred to by those persons who pretend to be so very constitutional that a plain and candid citizen sometimes wonders whether they will not doubt the constitutionality of the Constitution itself. However, that has been actually done with reference to the prohibition of the Slave-trade. Let us repeat the fact, that the Democrats under MADISON stood up universally and manfully for the constitutionality of the conscription. The bill was introduced into Congress by TROUPE, of Georgia. The Beauties of Waterbury—A Note from Carl Benson.

In Judge WATERBURY'S singularly violent and partisan report, I find the following reference to myself:

"The effect upon individuals is illustrated by a case which I will cite. On my return from Washington I obtained in the cars a copy of a leading Administration journal, for which some person writes over (sic) the signature of CARL BENSON, in favor of the speedy and relentless enforcement of the draft. In it there was a communication by him complaining that by the delay he was detained in the City to answer a possible drawing of his name. He says: 'I am one of a household of five males, all the others aliens and myself physically disqualified. No matter, we are all on the books, and cannot be taken off till after the draft.' Without relief, the effect of the enrollment of these five persons, none of whom could be made to serve, would be, although none of them were drawn, to require positively some other man to serve wrongfully as a conscript. With relief, the enrollment of the four aliens, if the names are fairly drawn, will do no harm; but the diseased man, if he is drawn, hobbles to the enrolling office and compels some other man, perhaps in some respects less able, to endure in his place somewhat greater hardship and danger than a continued sojourn amid the enjoyments of home."

It is not always easy to extract a precise and definite signification from the Judge's very clumsy and school-boy-like English, but if the clause which I have italicised has any meaning whatever—if it is not a mere string of words thrown together nonsensically, at random—it conveys an accusation against the management of the draft even graver than those which he so freely expresses, namely, that the exemption for physical disability goes by favor, and that a man by writing for an "Administration journal," or in some similar manner, may get the certificate which an equally or more unsound person, under different circumstances, would not obtain.

Allow me, through your columns, to ask Judge WATERBURY his grounds for this very serious insinuation.

The Judge, who is doubtless blessed with robust health, and never quits town during the dog-days, is unable to perceive what hardship it can be for an invalid to remain in a notoriously unhealthy city with the thermometer above 90. I suspect that, until the point is fully elucidated, the public will have equal difficulty in seeing how it is physically possible (to say nothing of the inhumanity and folly of such a proceeding) for the Government to make men march who can only "hobble."

I will just take the liberty of adding that if a resident of New-York has to endure somewhat less hardship and danger than a soldier in the field, it is no fault of Judge Waterbury, Gov. Seymour, and their friends, who have most assuredly done and are still doing their best to assimilate the condition of both parties. CARL BENSON.

IMPORTANT FROM CHARLESTON.

Rebel News to the 16th, by Way of Chattanooga.

The General Bombardment Opened on Saturday.

The Whole Fleet Inside the Bar.

The Fire Directed Principally Against Sumter.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Aug. 18.

A dispatch was received this morning by the Government, dated the 17th inst., from a distinguished military officer in Tennessee, stating that the Chattanooga Rebel, of the 16th inst., announced that the bombardment of Charleston on Saturday, the 15th inst., was awful, and that the firing from GILLMORE'S land batteries on Morris Island, and from the Monitors, was chiefly directed against Fort Sumter.

The combined land and naval forces of the Federals seemed to be engaged.

The information published in the Rebel was received at Chattanooga from Charleston by telegraph, and the fight was going on when the paper went to press on Sunday.

The Rebel states that the Ironsides and all the Monitors were not only in the action, but that the whole fleet and a large number of transports were inside the bar during the engagement.

The officer who communicated to the Government the contents of the Rebel, says that the editor of the Rebel, instead of making any boasts about the result, or manifesting the least jubilant feeling over the situation of affairs at Charleston, exhibits most positive evidence of "gloom."

A POLITICAL GATHERING.

A Meeting at Rochester to Consult Concerning the Next Presidential Campaign.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Tuesday, Aug. 18.

A number of influential gentlemen from this and other States are here to-day for consultation with regard to the next Presidential campaign, in accordance with the call published a few days since signed by R. F. STEVENS as Secretary.

A private caucus is now being held, and the meeting will convene at 12 o'clock noon.

Among those already in attendance are Hon. LESLIE COOMBS and Hon. GARRET DAVIS, of Kentucky.

Other prominent and distinguished gentlemen are expected to arrive during the morning.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Tuesday, Aug. 18, 1 o'clock, P. M.

The caucus, which was attended by about thirty representatives, was somewhat prolonged, and at the close the formal meeting was postponed until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Representatives from the several States are present, including Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland and Wisconsin.

Letters have been received from Ex-President FILLMORE, and other distinguished men.

The object of those present seems to be not to hold a Convention, but a series of private consultations, with a view of organizing in the different States the old Whig and BELL and EVERETT elements, with a National head, to act in the next Presidential campaign as a balance-of-power party.

It is expected that a definite course of action will be determined on this evening.

The appointment of a National Committee, and the issue of an Address to the People, are among the things contemplated.

Representatives continue to arrive.

ROCHESTER, Tuesday, Aug. 18—A. M.

The secret conference this afternoon lasted three or four hours, during which GARRET DAVIS, N. H. WOOD, and others, participated in a comparison of views with regard to sustaining political organizations and their respective strength and aims; the reported conclusion arrived at being that the restoration of peace and the reëstablishment of the Union can only be brought about by the organization of the conservative elements of the North upon a platform similar to that of the Union Democracy of Kentucky.

A Committee, consisting of Messrs. DAVIS, of Kentucky; N. H. WOOD, of Wisconsin; R. F. STEVENS, of New-York; S. W. BAILEY, of Whitehall; and J. P. FAUBAT, of Canandaigua, was appointed to prepare business for to-morrow, and submit an address.

The meeting is composed of about thirty delegates, and there do not appear to be any interested outsiders.

From California.

A SENSATION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Tuesday, Aug. 18.

Arrived the 15th inst., Mazeppa, from Liverpool; this evening, steamship St. Louis, from Panama.

We had a new sensation to-day. A suspicious schooner was reported to have been cruising for four days off the Heads, supposed to be a tender to a pirate steamer further out. The schooner was seen apparently to chase a bark leaving the harbor, when both were lost in the distance. Gen. WRIGHT and Collector LOW were warned of the circumstances, and the revenue cutter Shubrick was dispatched to learn the character of the strange vessel. Meanwhile the town was filled with absurd rumors. In the afternoon the Shubrick returned. The mysterious schooner was found to be only a harmless whaler, cruising.

Arrived 16th, Conquest and Bell of the Sea, both from New-York.

Arrived 17th, Daring, HENRY, from New-York; brings a large quantity of war material for the Government, including one 11-inch gun, 330 barrels of gunpowder, 1,000 packages of ordnance.

Sailed 17th, Hamburg bark Hamburg, THOMSON, Otago.

Arrived to-day steamer Brother Jonathan, from the North, with $14,000 in treasure from Portland and $6,300 from Victoria.

The Forty-seventh Massachusetts Regiment at Home.

BOSTON, Tuesday August 18.

The Forty-seventh Massachusetts regiment, Col. MARSH, arrived to-day from New Orleans, and met with a cordial reception.

NORTH CAROLINA AND THE REBELLION.

A Remarkable Article from a Journal in the Rebel States.

Review of the History of the Secession Movement.

What the Leaders Promised To Do.

WHAT THEY HAVE FAILED TO ACCOMPLISH.

The following is the remarkable article which appeared in the Raleigh, N. C., Standard, on July 31. It is reported to have been written by Hon. R. S. DONNELL, Speaker of the House of Commons of North Carolina, aided by F. B. SATTERTHWAITE, President of the Governor's Council, and to have been published with the approval of GOV. VANCE. We publish the article, and italicize, &c., as it was printed in the Standard:

THE SECESSIONISTS — THEIR PROMISES AND PERFORMANCES — THE CONDITION INTO WHICH THEY HAVE BROUGHT THE COUNTRY—THE REMEDY, ETC.

MR. EDITOR: There is, so far as I remember, no war to be met with in history entirely analagous to the one now raging between the North and the South. That produced by an attempt on the part of three of the Swiss Cantons to separate themselves from the Confederation, a few years since, in some respects, resembles it most nearly. That attempt, it will be remembered, was arrested, and the rebellious Cantons speedily reduced to submission by the arms of the Confederacy. It is frequently compared to our old Revolutionary struggle with the mother country, but there is scarcely an analogy between the two cases. The thirteen Colonies were not like the Southern States, equal in political rights with the other States of the British Empire. They possessed no sovereign power whatever. They were not, as we were, entitled to representation in the common Parliament of the British Union, but were mere Colonies—mere dependencies upon the mother country. In an evil hour the administration of GEORGE GRENVILLE, and afterwards that of Lord NORTH, attempted to impose a tax upon the Colonies. This oppression was resisted, and the resistance was made the pretext for other oppressions more unjust still. The Colonies continued their resistance in a constitutional way for nearly ten years, by representations, remonstrances, and petitions for the redress of grievances; but all in vain. At length they took up arms, with the avowed object of enforcing such redress. They solemnly disclaimed all intention of separation from the parent State, for they were as loyal in their feelings of attachment to the British Constitution as were the inhabitants of Surry or Cornwall. This resolute step they confidently expected would procure the desired redress; but the advice of all the ablest statesmen at that age—of CHATHAM, of CAMDEN, of BURKE, of FOX, of SHERIDAN, and others, were thrown away upon the narrow-minded monarch and the bigoted ministry which then swayed the destinies of the British Empire. Still in hope, they continued the struggle for one whole year. At length the British Parliament declared the colonies out of the protection of the parent State. And then at last, no other course was left them but to proclaim their independence; and defend it if need be with their life's blood. The battle of Lexington was fought on the 19th of April, 1775, and on the 12th of April, 1776, the Provincial Congress of North Carolina "empowered their delegates in Congress to concur with the delegates of the other Colonies in declaring independence and forming foreign alliances," and on the 15th of the following month Virginia, through her Convention, instructed her delegates in the Continental Congress "to propose to that body to declare the United Colonies free and independent States, absolved from all allegiance to, or dependence on, the Crown or Parliament of Great Britain," and on the 4th of July following the ever memorable Declaration was made.

But how different has been the course of the Secessionists. They seem to have resolved years ago that the Union should be destroyed, and then to have set themselves to work to forge such grievances as would seem to give them a decent pretext for the accomplishment of their premeditated schemes. The first effort was made in the days of nullification by the Secessionists of South Carolina. The grievance then complained of was the tariff, although the State of South Carolina, herself, had been from the foundation of the Government nearly up to that period, as strong an advocate of a high tariff as any State in New-England. That question was compromised—South Carolina obtained all that she ostensibly demanded. A revenue tariff, with incidental protection, became the settled policy of the Government, and, except for a short period under the tariff of 1842, was never departed from. But still they were not satisfied. Immediately after passage of Mr. CLAY's Compromise bill, the newspaper organ of the Secessionists at Washington declared, "that the South could never be united on the tariff question, and that the slave question was the only one that could unite them." And Mr. CALHOUN, if I mistake not, said the same thing in a speech at Abbeville, in South Carolina, about the same time; and, of course, was followed by all the lesser lights among his adherents. Then commenced that violent agitation of the Slavery question which had nearly culminated upon the admission of California, in 1850. Again, by the efforts of those immortal statesmen of the last age, Messrs. WEBSTER, CLAY and others, was the matter compromised. The whole country at first appeared to be satisfied with the settlement, but it soon appeared that there were a number of restless spirits among the extremists of the South, that would be satisfied with nothing short of a dissolution of the Union. Of this class of politicians, W. L. YANCEY may be fitly selected as representative man. He immediately began to agitate the question again. He went to the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore, in 1852, as a delegate from the State of Alabama, and there proposed as the ultimatum on which he could continue to act with the Democratic party, and upon which, in his opinion, the Slave States should consent to remain in the Union, that the doctrine of non-intervention by Congress in regard to Slavery in the Territories should be incorporated in the Democratic platform. In this he failed, and therefore did not support the nominee of the Convention, Mr. PIERCE. He could not, however, at that time, succeed in creating a great schism in the Democratic party, so great had been the calm which the compromise measures of 1850 had produced. In 1856 he again went as a delegate from the State of Alabama to the Cincinnati Convention, with his old ultimatum in his pocket. Contrary to his wishes and expectations it was incorporated into the Cincinnati platform, and being thus left without an excuse, he supported Mr. BUCHANAN for the Presidency in the Fall of that year. In the mean time, however, that fatal measure, the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, had been consummated. It was brought about by the extremists of the South, aided by a few partisan Democrats at the North. The avowed object of its author was to open to Slavery the territories north of the Missouri Compromise line, notwithstanding the agreement of 1820, that said line should forever divide the territories between the Slave and Free States. It is said, however, that the compromise of 1820 was unconstitutional; but what is that to the purpose? It was a most solemn compact between the two sections of the country, made for the settlement of a most perplexing question, and without any reference to its constitutionality, should have been regarded as an organic law, and observed as sacredly as the Constitution itself

The effect of this measure was great and rapid, and there can be but little doubt that it was such as a majority of its authors contemplated. The result was the formation of a great party at the North opposed to the further extension of Slavery, and which party very nearly succeeded in electing their candidate for the Presidency, Mr. FREMONT, in 1856. After the election, this party seemed to be on the wane, until the Anti-Slavery spirit of the whole North was aroused to madness, by an attempt on the part of Mr. BUCHANAN's Administration to force the Lecompton Constitution with Slavery upon the people of Kansas, in opposition to the known and expressed wish of three-fourths of them. But for this most unjustifiable measure the Republican party would undoubtedly have dwindled down to moderate proportions; and even after this, it is doubtful if they could have succeeded in the Presidential election of 1860, if the Secessionists, with YANCEY at their head, had not determined that they should succeed. After Mr. YANCEY and his party had, against their wishes, succeeded in getting their ultimatum of non-intervention incorporated into the Cincinnati platform, they went to work to conjure up another to present to the Charleston Convention. Abandoning their doctrine of non-intervention, they went to the opposite extreme and demanded that the intervention of Congress for the protection of Slavery in the territories should constitute a part of the Charleston platform. This demand they well knew would not be complied with, nor did they desire that it should be. Their object was to procure the secession of the delegates of the cotton States from the Convention, and thus by defeating the nomination of Mr. DOUGLAS, and rending asunder the Democratic party, to ensure the election of Mr. LINCOLN, and thereby forge for themselves a grievance which would seem to justify them in the execution of the long meditated designs of destroying the Union. All of this they accomplished, and the election of Mr. LINCOLN was perhaps hailed with greater joy at Charleston than at New-York. I will do them the justice to state that they also claimed to have some other grievances; among them, that some of the Northern States by their statutes obstructed the execution of the Fugitive Slave law, but the only States that could complain much on that score, were willing to remain in the Union, while South Carolina, the State which set the ball in motion, perhaps never lost a slave. But it must be borne in mind that no act of the National Government constituted any part of their grievances. They did not pretend that any act of Congress infringed their rights, and the decisions of the Supreme Court were mainly such as they would themselves have made. Nay, even at the very time of Mr. LINCOLN's inauguration, if the Cotton States had allowed their Senators and Representatives to remain, they would have had a decided majority in both Houses of Congress in favor of the extension of Slavery, and in opposition to the policy of the party which elected him.

The great cause of complaint was, that a man opposed to the extension of Slavery in the Territories had been elected President of the United States, according to the forms of the Constitution which he was sworn to defend and protect, and who disclaimed any other than constitutional means in the accomplishments of his objects. Under such circumstances it seems that if they had labored under any real grievance, their course was plain. They should have taken the course of our revolutionary fathers. When the States assembled in Convention, instead of proceeding at once to declare their independence—for the idea of secession, peaceable of right, seems, as Publius says, to have exploded and given up the ghost—should clearly and concisely have stated what their grievances were, and demanded redress in respectful, yet firm and decided terms. They should have exhausted every constitutional means of obtaining guarantees—if any were needed—by representation, by remonstrance, by petition; and failing in all these, they should have done as our revolutionary sires did, i. e. fight in the Union for their rights until they were driven out of it. Such a course would have procured for us, as it did for our fathers, the respect, the sympathy, and the assistance of other nations. Instead of that, we have not a friend in Europe. But such was not the course which these—in their own estimation—wise statesmen chose to pursue. When such a course was suggested or recommended to them, they evaded it by a long list of magnificent promises, which looked so splendid as almost to dazzle the mind with their brilliancy.

First and foremost, they promised that secession should be peaceable.

Secondly—They promised that if perchance war should ensue, it would be a very short war; that it would not last six months—that the Yankees would not fight—that one Southerner could whip from ten to one hundred of them—that England and France would speedily recognize us, and render us every assistance we might desire—that whatever might be their abstract opinions of the subject of Slavery, their interests would impel them to promote its perpetuity in the Southern States; that it, after all, they should not be disposed to assist us, Cotton was King, and would soon bring all the crowned heads of Europe on their knees in supplication to us; would compel them to raise the blockade—should one be established—in thirty days, in sixty days, in ninety days, in one hundred and twenty days, in six months, in nine months, in one year at furthest.

Thirdly. They promised us that all the slave States except Delaware would join the Southern Confederacy—that Slavery should not only be perpetuated in the States, but that it should be extended into all the Territories in which the negro could live; that all the grievances occasioned by the non-execution of the Fugitive Slave law should be speedily redressed; that slave property should be established upon a basis as safe as that of landed property.

Fourthly—They promised us that the new Government should be a mere Confederacy of States, of absolute sovereignty and equal rights; that the States should be tyrannized over by no such "central despotism" as the old Government at Washington; that the glorious doctrine of State rights and nullification, as taught by Mr. JEFFERSON and Mr. CALHOUN, should prevail in the new Confederacy; that the sovereignty of the States and their judicial decisions should be sacredly respected.

Fifthly—They promised us the early and permanent establishment of the wealthiest and best Government on the earth, whose credit should be better than that of any other nation; whose prosperity and happiness should be the envy of the civilized world.

And lastly, they promised us that if war should ensue, they would go to the battle-field and spill, if necessary, the last drop of their blood in the cause of their beloved South.

While such have been their promises, what have been their performances? Instead of secession being peaceable as they promised that it would, it has given rise to such a war as has never before desolated any country, since the barbarians of the North overran the Roman Empire.

So far from the war's ending in six months, as they said it would, should it ensue it has already lasted more than two years; and if their policy is to be pursued, it will last more than two years longer; and, notwithstanding their predictions, the Yankees have fought on many occasions with a spirit and determination worthy of their ancestors of the Revolution—worthy of the descendants of those austere old Puritans whose heroic spirit and religious zeal made OLIVER CROMWELL's army the terror of the civilized world—or of those French Huguenots, "who, thrice in the Sixteenth Century, contended with heroic spirit and various fortunes against all the genius of the house of Lorainne, and all the power of the house of Valois." England and France have not recognized us—have not raised the blockade—have not shown us any sympathy, nor is there any probability that they ever will, and that Cotton is not King is now universally acknowledged. And Maryland has not joined the Confederacy, nor has Kentucky nor Missouri ever really been with us. Slavery has not only not been perpetuated in the States, nor extended into the Territories, but Missouri has passed an act of emancipation, and Maryland is ready to do so rather than give up her place in the Union, and the last hope of obtaining one foot of the Territories for the purpose of extending Slavery has departed from the Confederacy forever. The grievances caused by the failure of some of the Northern States to execute the Fugitive Slave law, have not only not been remedied, but more slaves have been lost to the South forever since secession was inaugurated, than would have escaped from their masters in the Union in five centuries. And how have they kept their promise that they would respect the sovereignty and rights of the States? Whatever the Government may be in theory, in fact we have a grand military consolidation, which almost entirely ignores the existence of the States, and disregards the decisions of their highest judicial tribunals. The great central despotism at Washington, as they were pleased to call it, was at any time previous to the commencement of the secession movement, and even for some time after it had commenced, a most mild and beneficent Government compared with the central despotism at Richmond, under which we are now living.

Instead of an early and permanent establishment of the "wealthiest and best Government in the world, with unbounded credit," what have we got? In spite of all the victories which they profess to have obtained over the Yankees, they have lost the States of Missouri, Kentucky, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, and in my humble opinion have lost them forever: and, in all probability, Alabama will soon be added to the number. This will leave the Confederacy but five States out of the original thirteen, and of these five the Yankees have possession of many of the most important points, and one-third of their territory. So far, the Yankees have never failed to hold every place of importance which they have taken, and present indications are, that Charleston will soon be added to the number. The campaign of Gen. LEE into Pennsylvania has undoubtedly proved a failure, and with it the last hope of conquering a peace by a successful invasion of the enemy's country. Our army has certainly been very much weakened and dispirited by this failure and the fall of Vicksburgh, and how long even Richmond will be safe no one can tell. As the Richmond Enquirer said some time ago, "They are slowly but surely gaining upon us acre by acre, mile by mile," and, unless Providence interposes in our behalf—of which I see no indications—we will, at no great distance of time, be a subjugated people.

As to our unbounded credit based upon the security of King Cotton, it is unnecessary to speak. When we see one of the most influential States in the Confederacy discrediting a very large part of the Confederate currency, and the Confederate Government itself repudiating, to some extent, its most solemn obligations, we cannot but suppose that the confidence of other nations in the good faith and credit of this Government is small indeed. As regards their promise "to go to the war and spill the last drop of their blood in the cause of their beloved South," I will say nothing. Everybody knows how the Secessionists of North Carolina have kept that promise. Everybody knows that the leaders, with a few honorable exceptions, will neither fight nor negotiate.

What a deplorable spectacle does the foregoing history present to our view! To what a desperate pass have they brought us, and for what? They say that they did it because the North would give us no guarantee in the Slavery question. I have before stated that not one of the Conventions of the seven Cotton States ever demanded any guarantee whatever. Nay, they even refused to accept of any if their friends of the Border States would procure it for them.

The Legislature of North Carolina, at its regular session in January, 1861, adopted resolutions appointing Commissioners to the peace Congress at Washington City, and also to the Convention which assembled at Montgomery, Alabama, in February, 1861, for the purpose of adopting a Constitution, and establishing a Provisional Government for the Confederate States of America. On the motion of the writer of this, the resolution appointing Commissioners to Montgomery was amended so as to instruct them "to act only as mediators, and use every effort possible to restore the Union upon the basis of the Crittenden propositions as modified by the Legislature of Virginia." The Commissioners under these instructions were the Hon. D. L. SWAIN Gen. M. W. RANSON, and JOHN L. BRIDGERS, Esq., who, upon their return, submitted a report to his Excellency, Gov. ELLIS, which was by him laid before the Legislature, and was printed among the legislative documents of that year, where it may be consulted. In this report they say that they had the most ample opportunities of ascertaining public opinion on the cotton States, and then add: "We regret to be constrained to state, as the result of our inquiries, made under such circumstances, that only a very decided minority of the community in these States are disposed at present, to entertain favorably, any proposition of adjustment which looks toward a reconstruction of our National Union. In this state of things we have not deemed it our duty to attend any of the secret sessions of the Congress. The resolutions of the General Assembly are upon the table of the Congress, and having submitted them as a peace offering, we would poorly perform the duties assigned to us by entering into discussions which would serve only to enkindle strife."

But it will be said that these guarantees could not have been obtained from the North. This I admit to be true, and only produces this piece of history to prove that whatever might have been obtained, nothing would have been accepted. But the Congress of the United States did pass by the constitutional majority of two-thirds the proposition reported by Mr. CORWIN, from the Committee of twenty-three, to so amend the Constitution as to prohibit Slavery in the States. What stronger guarantee could be given so far as the States were concerned it would be difficult to conceive. What then would have been left to quarrel about? The Territories. During the session of Congress which closed on the 4th of March, 1861, acts were passed to provide temporary Governments for the three remaining new Territories, to wit: Colorado, Nevada, and Dacotah. These acts contain no trace or indication of the Wilmot Proviso, nor any other prohibition against the introduction of Slavery, but on the other hand, expressly declare among other things, that "no law shall be passed impairing the rights of private property; nor shall any discrimination be made in taxing different kinds of property, but all property subject to taxation shall be in proportion to the value of the property taxed."

Now, when it is considered that all three of these Territories are north of 36° 30', and that in the new Territory now owned by the United States south of that line, Slavery actually exists and is recognized by the Territorial law, the question may well be asked: "What was there worth quarreling, much less fighting about?" Here was a settlement of the question in the Territories made by a Republican Congress, which gave the South all that up to the time of the Charleston Convention she had ever asked, and far more than she could hope to gain, in any event, by secession—Indeed, I think it must now be apparent that secession even it could have been effected peaceably, would have been no remedy for the grievances of which they complained. Nay, so far as any grievances arising from a failure to obtain a return of our fugitive slaves was concerned, I think it must now be apparent that it would have been an aggravation instead of a remedy for the evil. I think all calm and dispassionate men everywhere, are now ready to admit that it would have been far better for us to have accepted the terms offered to us and preserved peace and the Union, than to have plunged this once happy country into the horrors of this desolating war, which has spread a pall over the whole land—has brought mourning into every family—has rendered hundreds of thousands of hearthstones desolate—has filled the land with maimed and disabled, with widows and orphans, and squalid poverty—has crowded our poorhouses and almshouses—has sported away many hundreds of thousands of lives and many hundreds of millions of treasure, only to find the institution for which they profess to have gone to war, in a thousand times greater jeopardy than ever before.

Such being the condition into which they have brought the country, the question presents itself, "is there any remedy?" A full, complete and adequate remedy, there is not; for what can restore the loved ones lost—repair at once the desolation, or remove immediately the mourning from our land? Yet there is a remedy, which, with the helping hand of time, will accomplish much, very much indeed, and which with the energy that usually follows desolating wars, will, perhaps, remove most of its traces in a half century. This remedy is peace, speedy peace! But they say that we are so situated that no proposition for peace can be made by us; that having proclaimed our independence, we must fight until it is voluntarily acknowledged by the United States, or until we are completely subjugated. On the meeting of the British Parliament, which took place on the 13th of December, 1792, the King in his speech to the two Houses, intimated his intention of going to war with the French Republic. On moving the address in answer to the speech, a memorable debate arose. On this occasion, CHAS. JAS. FOX delivered one of those powerful speeches which have made his name immortal—which have forever stamped him as the ablest of British debaters, and the first of British statesmen. In the course of that speech he said: "But we now disdain to negotiate. Why? Because we have no minister at Paris. Why have we no Minister there? Because France is a Republic! And so we are to pay in blood and treasure of the people for a punctilio! * * * * * * * * * The road of common sense is simple, plain and direct. That of pride and punctilio is as tangled as it is serpentine." In the impassioned language of Mr. FOX, I would ask, are we to pay in blood and treasure of the people for a punctilio? Shall we pursue the path of pride and punctilio, which is as tangled as it is serpentine, or shall we take the simple, plain and direct road of common sense, which may lead to the happiest results? Four-fifths of the people of that portion of North Carolina bordering for many miles on the Yadkin River, and I believe of the whole State, are in favor of the latter course.

The one great demand of the people of this part of the State is peace; peace upon any terms that will not enslave and degrade us. They may, perhaps, prefer that the independence of the South should be acknowledged, but this they believe cannot now be obtained, nor in viewing the situation of affairs, do they see much to hope of it in the future. They naturally ask, if with no means of recruiting to any extent, we cannot hold our own against the armies which the Yankees have now in the field, how can we meet them with their 300,000 new levies which will soon be in readiness, while they can keep their army recruited to a great extent, if not up to its maximum number from adventurers which are constantly arriving in their ports from every country in Europe? But if independence cannot be obtained, then they are for any terms that are honorable—any terms that do not degrade us. They would be willing to compromise upon the amendment proposed by Mr. CORWIN from the Committee of Twenty-six, pepetuating Slavery in the States to which I have before alluded. But in what precise way overtures shall be made, or the movement inaugurated, I leave to wiser men and abler statesmen than myself to propose. I would, however, suggest to the people to elect members to the next Congress who are in favor of an armistice of six months, and in the meantime, of submitting all matters in dispute to a convention of delegates from all the States North and South, the delegates to be elected by the people themselves, in such manner as may be agreed upon by the two parties. Others there are, who desire that the people of North Carolina should be consulted in their sovereign capacity through a convention—that the Legislature should submit the question of "Convention or no Convention" to the people as was done in February, 1861. Such a convention would undoubtedly speak the sentiments of the people of the State, citizens as well as soldiers, as all would be consulted. But I propose nothing definite, and only make these suggestions to bring the matter before the public. I would, however, most earnestly appeal to the friends of humanity throughout the State to use their utmost efforts to procure as speedily as possible an honorable peace. In the name of reason, of suffering humanity, and of the religion which we profess, would I appeal to the public men and statesmen of North Carolina, and especially to that eminent statesman who possesses in a greater degree than all others the confidence of the people of the State, and who has recently been elevated to a high place in the Confederate Government, to lend a helping hand and use their influence to bring about an honorable peace. And lastly, I would appeal to the ministers and professors of our holy religion to pray constantly—without dictation of terms—to Almighty God for an honorable peace.

Having but recently occupied a large space in your columns, I feel that I am intruding, and will therefore, after expressing my obligations to you, close for the present. DAVIDSON.

CLEMONSVILLE, N. C., July 16, 1863.

Death of a Gallant Soldier Lad.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Saturday, Aug. 1, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Will you allow me space in your valuable journal to record the loss by death of one of our noble soldiers, a native of England, LEWIS H. RUTGER, Co. H, First N. Y. V. artillery, who died at Armory-square Hospital, from injuries received by falling from the cars, when under orders to proceed to Frederick. His loss is deeply deplored by the whole company, to whom he had endeared himself by his bravery, his strict integrity, honor and amiability of temper. Although young in years, he had endured, since entering the service, hardships and privations which older heads dreaded to encounter. His comrades, as a memento of their brotherly regard and grief at his loss, have placed over his remains, at the "Soldiers' Home," a marble monument, inscribed:

Our Comrade in Battle,
LEWIS H. RUTGER, CORPORAL FIRST N. Y. V. ARTILLERY,
Died July 17, 1863; Aged 23.

"One of our country's bravest men,
Beneath this marble sleeps."

Should any of his friends read this they may be solaced by the thought, that Mr. and Mrs. HUGHES, residents of Washington, were in constant attendance upon him to the last. They had only to see him ere they loved him. The Surgeon in charge, Dr. BLISS, was assiduous in his attentions to him, and felt an especial interest in the poor sufferer, by his patience, cheerfulness and courage under the necessary amputations. The Assistant Surgeons and nurses were alike attentive, as also his companion in arms, S. B. TOWNSEND, who recognized him when carried into the ward, and carefully watched for three days and nights by the bedside of the dying young soldier, although himself an invalid. I must add, I never in my life witnessed more sympathy and interest for any sufferer, than was shown to this brave boy, by all who saw and knew the terrible nature of the wounds, and the resignation and fortitude of our young friend. His commander, Capt. MINK, mourns him as a beloved brother for he knew and esteemed him, and acknowledges the loss of a brave and faithful soldier. His mother and sisters were anxiously hoping to welcome him home at the expiration of his service, the one had been separated from the others upwards of eight years. Alas! how soon has the future been darkened by death, when only a few weeks since all was brightness and joy at the thought that their future years would be solaced and supported by his presence and help. Not one complaint of any kind did he utter, although he was severely injured internally, as well as in his upper and lower limbs, in his body, in his head and face, and in this state lay for several hours until picked up by the guard. He endured amputation of both legs without one word or groan, his only anxiety being for his mother and sisters, and the fear of being reported a deserter, as in the darkness of the night he was not missed until his company reached Frederick, and he supposed they would be unable to account for his absence.

Such is the melancholy death of this noble and promising youth who, in the seven days' fight, before surrendering his guns when overpowered by the enemy, slew his comrade, Sergt. GUZMAN, and in the midst of the enemy, spiked every gun before leaving. Gen. MCCLELLAN, noticing the act, commented thereon as the "two bravest men in the whole army."

Several friends of the brave and faithful soldier, Corporal L. H. RUTGER, who lost his life under most melancholy circumstances at Washington July 17, desire to offer their sympathy and condolence to his afflicted mother and sisters under their sad bereavement. It is therefore hoped that all who esteem a noble and faithful soldier will endeavor to alleviate the loss he is to his family as much as possible, and will aid in carrying out the plans which this noble boy had projected for the benefit of his widowed mother.

Raw Material.

Allow me through the medium of your excellent daily paper to point out to "the powers that be," a means whereby a considerable force of disciplined men could be spared from this State and their places efficiently filled by veteran troops.

For instance, there are at present in the General Hospital at Fort Schuyler some hundreds of able-bodied men belonging to the Invalid Corps. Some with only one arm, one leg, &c., &c., all "good men and true," who, with a little judicious drilling, could be made available for garrison duty, and I know from experience that such men make not only excellent artillery men, but they are more efficient and more useful in a garrison than young soldiers that have never seen service.

To make this statement plain to a non-military reader I will state the duties of a gun detachment for service in a fortification, or, what is technically called "casemate drill." There are five men required to load and fire a gun and their duties are as follows:

No. 1 sponges. A man with only one leg could act efficiently as No. 1.

No. 2 loads and assists No. 1 to sponge. Another one-legged man would do first-class.

No. 3 fires and assists to run the gun to and from battery. A one-armed man could do all that very well.

No. 4 supplies ammunition from the rear and assists to run the gun to and from battery. Any kind of a lively cripple could do all that "tip-top."

No. 5 points the gun—that is he directs it to be elevated or depressed or trailed to the right or left, &c., &c., so any man with a good eye and a small amount of intelligence and tuition—no matter what part of his person he was deficient of—could do all that very well indeed.

Now, Sir, under judicious commanders, you could have all your harbor forts easily garrisoned in this manner by veteran troops, who would be well suited to do garrison duty for their age, and it would raise the poor fellows in their own estimation too, because they would feel that they were still useful and earned their bread honestly, patriotically and manfully.

Therefore, if this suggestion is carried out, all those smart young men that are at present doing garrison duty could be in a short time sent to the field as light field batteries, or a judicious selection made from them to organize some troops of flying horse artillery—an element of military power essentially necessary in every field manœuvre and most useful under any circumstances in warfare, either in advancing or retiring. Horse artillery and cavalry cover the heavy columns, and should be and are the first to engage the enemy whilst the main army are getting into position; then they clear away from the front and take up positions on the flanks, ready to take advantage of any opportunity to dash in at a gallop on the broken enemy and give them their dessert—"grape," of course, quite thick and heavy—whilst the cavalry flanked and dealt their favors freely about, the main army advancing to the support of the light troops and in case the enemy reformed, at him again before he'd have time to say "sneeze," burst another hole in him and on with the light troops again, and so on. Ha, there is nothing like horse artillery and a good regiment of lancers, if they are only commanded by honesty, bravery and common intelligence.

Yours, Sir, GOOLEE MCKHAN.

Tribute to an Army Surgeon.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Aug. 17, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

So frequently, in the history of this war, have noble men and women exerted themselves to aid our soldiers, both in the hospital and camp, that their good deeds have almost ceased to be noticed. Yet those who are benefited, who receive the unexpected care and skill, feel most warmly toward their good Samaritan. I would record, in your paper, the name of J. H. MACOMBER, Surgeon U. S. N., recently attached to the gunboat Seneca. When the desperate assault of July 18 had been bravely made on Fort Wagner, and the large number of wounded had been gathered in, there was a scarcity of surgeons. In this emergency Surgeon MACOMBER, with some others whose names I regret I cannot give, nobly volunteered to take care of them. It was my good fortune, with a number of officers, to be placed under the care of Dr. MACOMBER; and from the time we were taken on board the steamer Mary Benton, July 19, till we were placed on the steamer Cosmopolitan to be brought North, July 27, he was unremitting in his attentions. Day and night he watched over us, handling us as tenderly as a woman, and by his pleasant words and cheerful smile exciting hope even in hearts soon to be stilled forever. To his own health he gave not a thought, though his incessant labor was wearing him out. We left him with regret; and desiring to testify our admiration and esteem for him as a surgeon and gentleman, while on our way North, raised a sum with which a handsome watch has been purchased. It is now on exhibition at TIFFANY & Co's. A neat letter, on parchment, has been prepared, which, with the watch, will in a few days be sent to this noble officer. ONE OF THE WOUNDED.

A Pardonable Error.

In a series of Copperhead resolutions in relation to the President's letter on the draft, adopted by the Kings County Democratic General Committee, occurs this sentence: "Humiliating for its admission that the most popular and best form of government in the world can no longer (the first time since its establishment) rely upon the voluntary and unrestrained support of its citizens in what he is pleased to call its death struggle." Now, inasmuch as drafting was resorted to in this "Sovereign State," even in this Democratic City, to expel the British troops from our sacred soil during the last war, 1812, we can only in charity excuse the lack of historical knowledge on the part of this Committee, from the fact that a majority of its members were a long time after that event patriotically cutting their eye-teeth beyond the seas. If they will please consult an American History on the subject, they may be enlightened. AMERICAN.

A Conscript's Dilemma.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Aug. 17, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

From the tenor of an article in your paper some time since, I inferred that you held the opinion that Congress, in framing the Conscription act, and making the ages between which citizens were liable (20 and 45) intended plainly that July 1, 1863, should be the date at and from which this should be in force. Thus one is enrolled some time in July, and some time before attaining the age of 20. In the meantime the draft has been delayed, and he has reached this age, is he not exempt, from the fact of having been enrolled before having become liable for military duty under the act? INQUIRER.

A Bold Piece of Incendiarism.

The Hornbrook buildings in Wheeling, Va., were destroyed by fire on Friday last, under circumstances which the Intelligencer thus describes:

"An examination of the establishment discovered one of the boldest specimens of incendiarism on record. The house was set on fire in five different places by combustible material brought for the purpose. The doors of the rooms being securely locked, the fiendish scoundrels threw balls of fire over the transums above the doors upon the beds and upon such other material as would speedily ignite. After having thus fired the building up stairs, the incendiaries came down to the front door where they tore up the flooring, fired the floor and then, after securely barring the door from the inside to prevent egress from within or ingress from without, they made their escape from a hall window and disappeared. Not being satisfied with having fired the rooms, the fiends tore off the plastering and set fire to the lath between the rooms. The design was evidently not only to destroy the whole building, but to burn up the innocent human beings who were sleeping in the rooms, and it is almost a miracle that they did not accomplish their hellish purpose.

The whole loss will not exceed $3,000, which we understand is fully insured. Suspicion has not yet been publicly attached to any particular person, but it is generally believed that the incendiaries were persons who designed to gratify a settled malice entertained against Mr. HORNBROOK, the owner of the building, who is at present absent in Cincinnati. Mr. MATTHEWS, when he retired to bed on Thursday night, observed two men lurking about the front door of the building, and Mr. HENRY ROBINSON asserts that while himself and others were endeavoring to extinguish the flames, he saw a woman, in the room occupied, occasionally, by Mr. HORNBROOK, setting fire to Mr. HORNBROOK's papers. Altogether the case is a most singular one, evincing a hellish malignity and desperate purpose on the part of the guilty parties. The safety of the lives and property of our citizens demands that the affair should be thoroughly investigated.

Mr. CLEMENS succeeded in saving nearly all of his furniture and will suffer only such damage as may result from the water and inconvenience. Mr. TAYLOR was fully prepared to move his goods as the flames progressed, but fortunately he was not put to that necessity."

PERSONAL.

—Rev. M. D. Conway has addressed the following card to the editor of the Philadelphia Press: "I have just seen a note published in the Press, from Mr. Shirley Brooks, of London, who seems to complain that I should have alluded to him, in one of my letters to the Commonwealth, as one of the Tory writers against us in Punch. The point made in my letter, and to support which his name was used, was precisely that in England not every man opposed to our cause is to be supposed Pro-Slavery. Of course, therefore, Mr. Brooks' complaint is but the result of his having only seen a detached portion of my letter. I quoted the case because it seemed to me a very important one; for, of all the attacks and insinuations against the North and its cause, there are few loyal Americans who will not agree that those in Punch have been the most offensive, and it is certainly a startling fact to learn that the author of them is an Anti-Slavery man."

—Gen. James M. Tuttle, of Iowa, it has been already announced, has received the nomination of the Copperhead party for Governor of that State, in place of Maturin L. Fisher, declined. Gen. Tuttle has been in the service ever since the war began, having entered it as Colonel of the Seventh Iowa, and is said to stand on the same platform with John A. Logan, Gen. Haynie and other War Democrats. He is now on a visit to his home in Van Buren County, Iowa, and it is said that, while on the way, learning that he had been put in nomination for Governor by the Copperhead State Convention in place of Fisher, declined, declaring that he would not accept.

—Brig.-Gen. Joseph W. Revere, of the Excelsior brigade, Second division, Third corps, has been dismissed from the service by sentence of Court-martial, for conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, in marching his command three miles from the scene of action toward United States Ford, on the morning of the battle at Chancellorsville, May 3. The President approved the sentence, and ordered it to be carried into execution.

—A few days since Dan Voorhees, the notorious rebel sympathizer, of Indiana, started from Terre Haute to go to Indianapolis, but on arriving at the depot, he found the train pretty well loaded with furloughed soldiers and marines from Vicksburgh, who refused to allow him to ride on the same train with them.

—The Albany Evening Journal asserts, after a careful examination of the returns, that there will be in the next Congress, not only an overwhelming majority in favor of the vigorous prosecution of the war, but a majority who will cast their votes for the election of a firm friend of the Administration as Speaker.

—The New-Orleans Era announces the death, Aug. 5, of Dr. D. W. Wainwright, Surgeon U. S. A., who died on board the ship Black Hawk at that port, of typhoid fever, after an illness of ten days. His remains are to be sent North.

—Brig.-Gen. Stedman has been relieved of the command of the Second brigade of Brannan's division, and ordered to report to Gen. Granger. It is hinted that he will soon have command of a division.

Obituary.

—The death of Prof. Jos. S. Hubbard, U. S. N. is announced. The New-Haven Journal says of him:

"He was a son of the late Stiles Hubbard, for many years connected with the New-Haven Bank. Mr. Hubbard graduated at Yale College about twenty years ago, and while a student devoted himself with much enthusiasm to the study of astronomy, earning for himself, step by step, a reputation for scholastic attainmen, until the day of his death. He was for some time after leaving college, employed as chief astronomer at the High School in Philadelphia, and our Government soon became convinced of the propriety of securing his services, owing to certain discoveries which he made and ably reported while a teacher at that institution. Mr. Hubbard was very modest in his manners, amiable and a man of strict integrity and of high morality. Those who knew him in boyhood and were his schoolmates, and have watched his progress until now, will lament his departure from a lifetime of so much usefulness. It had been his custom for some years to pay a visit home every summer, and it was while here that he was first taken ill with the fever of which he died.

Col. B. L. Bell, of the Regular Army, died in Baltimore on Aug. 12, at his residence in McCullough-street, after five months' illness, from old age and an enfeebled constitution, caused by hard services. He was the oldest cavalry Colonel in the service, having been through the Florida and Mexican wars, and was twice breveted for gallant services. He built all the forts from the western border of Texas to the Pacific, and was in command as General in California after its annexation to the United States. He served two years at Vancouver's Island, and after the rebellion broke out was ordered to Baltimore and acted as mustering officer. Subsequently he was placed on the retired list in consequence of old age and enfeebled health. He died aged sixty-three years, leaving a wife and several sons, some of whom are in the Federal and one in the rebel army. He also leaves several daughters.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE.

THEIR SERVICES DURING THE RIOT WEEK.

THEIR HONORABLE RECORD.

NUMBER TWENTY-ONE.

THE BROADWAY SQUAD.

In the record of the "Broadway Squad," or the "Twenty-fifth," it was stated that Capt. N. R. MILLS "was not on hand" during riot week. He was not, because of illness and absence—was at Sangersfield Centre, Oneida County. So soon as he heard of the riot, (which was on Wednesday evening,) he telegraphed to Inspector CARPENTER to know its proportions, and whether he should return. The Inspector, knowing his illness, did not answer; so, after waiting a short but reasonable time for reply, the Captain started for Utica, took the first train and came directly through, reporting at Central Office for duty on Thursday evening. All was over by this time, but he at once took command of his force, until, by representation of Surgeon RANNEY, he was allowed another leave of absence to recuperate. Before this was expired, he saw in the papers the rumored renewal of the draft, and at once returned and reported himself for duty on which he is now.

In this connection Roundsmen BENSON SHERWOOD, and fore this, had knocked his murderer down several times. The Irishman had run from him, leaving it to a score of others to render him defenceless ere, when the poor fellow was insensible, he returned to complete the work of murder. Capt. DICKSON found him, pressed into service a wagon, and putting him into it conveyed him to the hospital. No horse could be had, and the men turned in, drawing the wagon. The poor fellow died soon after, but meantime was able to whisper his name—WILLIAMS—to the Captain. Three of the parties to the murder have since been arrested by this force.

On Tuesday, at 10:30 A. M., Capt. DICKSON and his command were under Inspector DILKS, of those who visited the factory where stolen arms were stored at Twenty-second-street and Second-avenue. The Twenty-eighth had the right. Inspector DILK's command drove, it will be remembered, after severe fighting, the mob before them, then entered and took the well-defended building, and recovered a large number of arms. It was one of the most severe fights of the entire campaign, and thoroughly tested the "mettle" of the Police.

Sergeant GROAT had a desperate encounter with a well-armed, courageous and muscular fellow; he fough him, with reckless courage, some two hundred yards up the avenue and away from the command, but succeeded in bringing him to the ground; on the running fight the fellow turned, and a blow on the back of his head produced the phenomena of a full set of teeth flying out of his mouth, and, pirouetting in the air, falling some ten feet distant; they were evidently false, as was the heart of the fellow wearing them. In this battle not one innocent man was punished, but the avenue was literally strewn with the bodies of the rioters. Many were picked up and hastily removed out of town and buried; others were taken to the river, put into boats and carried off, no one knows and few care where, and others were carried to their homes to live or die, as the nature of their wounds permitted.

So soon as returned to Central Office, Capt. DICKSON and his command were ordered to report to Inspector LEONARD, at City Hall, and were on guard in Printing-house-square and Park, doing active and valuable duty in preventing concentration of inflamed and inflammatory crowds. They remained here until Saturday. Inspector LEONARD bearing cheerful testimony to their vigilance and efficiency, when they were returned to their own Precinct.

On Sunday morning, this Precinct, with others, Capt. DICKSON in command, were detailed to visit the different villages and towns up the river so far as Peekskill. They were accompanied by Companies A and B, Seventy-fourth regiment, New-York Volunteers, of Buffalo, Lieut. NAGLE in command, and were everywhere received with the utmost enthusiasm. Residents threw open their houses to them, and volunteered every hospitality. Capt. DICKSON in most cases declined, because of the numbers of his command, and his hesitancy in accepting hospitalities which, however well meant, might prove onerous. The force were gone until Wednesday, the 21st, disembarking en route and on return at every place, restoring confidence and assuring the residents of protection and assistance. Capt. DICKSON and his command speak in glowing terms of Lieut. NAGLE and his command of the Seventy-fourth regiment. Fresh from the duties of the war and noble service, their time had expired on Saturday, but they at once volunteered for the expedition. During it they won the admiration and respect of the citizens of every place visited, by their manly bearing and deportment.

Capt. DICKSON and his command are enthusiastic in their encomiums on the Lieutenant and his command, who, while they proved themselves soldiers, proved also that they were gallant and chivalrous gentlemen.

On the return of the force they had but a brief respite, for on Thursday, Capt. DICKSON was ordered to Fort Richmond. Reaching there he marched to Quarantine; thence to Vanderbilt's Landing. Here the riot had occurred in which two soldiers had been killed; he marched his command through all the infected section, meeting with none but peaceable demonstrations; the force during the day had marched eleven miles under a burning sun; two were prostrated and carried back to the boat. At 5 P. M. the command returned to New-York. On reaching the dock they were met with orders to go to Flushing, L. I., with Lieut. BIRD in command of Sixth Company, Seventh regiment, who were in waiting. Off at once they went, arriving at 8½ P. M.; landed, marched through the village and finding all quiet returned to the boat. Here they remained all night and in the morning, after another tour through the village, returned to the City, arriving at 3 P. M. Well fagged out the force marched to its own Precinct.

No force had more arduous and more prolonged duties than the "Twenty-eighth," and from first to last every call upon Capt. DICKSON and his command was obeyed with alacrity. In every engagement to which they were parties, they evinced the utmost courage, and their escutcheon is unstained by a single unworthy act. For a week and a half they were on constant duty, and have won full honors by the manner in which all requirements were performed. To Capt. DICKSON, whose example and endurance encouraged his men, the greatest credit is due.

Sergeant WILLIAM GROAT and Patroiman HENRY JAY, during the entire period of service, were unwearying, active and courageous.

Sergeant VAN DEUSEN was left in charge of the Station. On two occasions he was threatened by the mob, but coolly prepared for them, and with but four men not only managed to save the building, but the refugees in it.

In the battle within the Second-avenue, under Inspector DILKS, one of this force disposed of four of the worst of the rioters. He went into the fight on his own hook. His favorite cry was, when he brought a villain down, "Hallo! Johnny Roach, how are you?"

Naval Movements.

ANOTHER IRON-CLAD FOR CHARLESTON.

The naval authorities of the Brooklyn Navy-yard have reported the iron-clad Lehigh ready for active service. She burst a gun some time since at Fortress Monroe, and came here for a new one. On her arrival, however, she was taken in hand, and improved in every way. The turret gear, which got out of order in one of the vessels during the first contest, is now rendered inaccessible to projectiles of any description. A huge iron band, no less than five feet in thickness, surrounds the lower part of the turret, and preserves it from all effect of shot. The armament of the vessel has been also changed. She has now one of the 15-inch Dahlgren guns and a 200-pound Parrott, rifled, one of the extraordinary pieces of ordnance whose advent into the navy we noticed some time since. The machinery of the Lehigh has been also overhauled, and she is now in a better condition than when she sailed first from Wilmington. She is to leave this City to-morrow, or the day after, it is supposed, for Charleston, to reinforce the armored fleet doing such good service there. The Lehigh is one of the original nine iron-clads constructed immediately after the Monitor.

A "CONVERTED" MAN-OF-WAR.

To-day the United States steamer Fort Jackson will be formally put in commission as a regular man-of-war of the United States Navy. She is armed and equipped after the fashion of a first-class corvette, and has a crew of picked sailors. A few months since this vessel was purchased from Mr. VANDERBILT by the Government. She was called the Unison when in the service of the "Commodore," and had just attained a reputation of excellence which made the Government purchase her. On her arrival at the Navy-yard the Constructor put her in hands at once, had all the mercantile characteristics removed and made such improvements and additions as rendered her second to hardly any vessel of the class she rates with on the register. Capt. DRAYTON has provided her with a suitable armament, and the Navy Department has appointed some of the best available officers to command her. She will sail to-day or to-morrow to join one of our squadrons—which we are not informed.

PURCHASE AND CHARTER OF VESSELS.

The Navy Department has purchased the steamtug Ajax for service on the South Atlantic Station in connection with Key West and Port Royal. She was delivered yesterday to Admiral FAULDING, at the Navy-yard, and will be fitted out at once to go South. The Government has chartered a schooner to take ice to the officers, sailors and marines of the South Atlantic fleet. Arrangements are in progress to have her heavily laden with the precious commodity. Another vessel also recently purchased, called the Home, arrived at the Navy-yard, and was taken in hand for the necessary outfit. She will be temporarily turned over to Admiral GREGORY, the Superintendent of iron-clads in this vicinity.

AFFAIRS AT THE NAVY-YARD.

The prize steamer Calipso was on the dry dock yesterday morning, but on account of the arrival of the Mercedita she was taken off and the newly-arrived vessel put in her place. The Calipso was captured some time ago while trying to run the blockade; she is to be repaired. The boilers of the gunboat Galena are being removed for the purpose of putting new ones in. She is undergoing a general overhauling. The Kansas is in a fair way of being completed. She is still in the ship-house, and is expected to be launched in a few weeks. The work on the north side of the yard is still going on. Part of the roofing of the storehouses has been torn off, and when the old buildings are demolished new ones are to be built in their place. The following vessels are lying in the stream: The Massachusetts, Shenandoah, State of Georgia and Keystone State.

By instructions received at the Navy-yard, from Washington, for the rapid completion of the Tonawanda, which is now being built there, an extra gang of men were ordered to commence work upon her yesterday. She is expected to be ready for sea in the course of a week.

Copper Smelting Works—An Opportunity for Capitalists.

It is a noticeable fact that there is not a single copper smelting establishment in New-York. Noticeable because there is an unlimited business for such, and because with the accession of ore which the development of the California mines is making, there will ere long not be enough of such establishments to do the business required of them. The greater portion of the rich ore of California is being shipped to Swansea, Wales, where extensive works are established. At Baltimore, Mass., there are a few works, but they were erected for the smelting of the Lake Superior ore, and have monopolized this business, which has proved one of great profit. The works are expensive, but the per centage, where sufficient ore is had to keep engaged, is very great, and all that is required to make New-York a centre for the business, is to satisfy California that the facilities are here; the coppery treasure will then flow thither in abundance. Already some dozen mines are open in California, all of them yielding shipping ore, and many more in process of development. Capitalists there are turning attention to these mines in preference to the gold ones, as permanent investments. Afford the assurances of smelting facilities here, and to a certainty there will be an immense business built up. Boston receives a large quantity of the ore, being the only place, as we have said, where it can be worked. The matter is well worth the examination of capitalists; and there are assurances that investigations of the facts in regard to the copper interest will convince them of its magnitude, and of the advantage of turning their attention to it.

The Mayor and the Draft Ordinance.

Considerable interest is felt in regard to the position of His Honor the Mayor, on the ordinance bearing upon the draft, which has been passed by the Common Council. While we know nothing positively of the views of His Honor, we understand from reliable sources that in his interview with those framing the ordinance he suggested amendments, making it more consistent with the interests of the Government, and at the same time not a whit less liberal to those drafted whom it is intended to benefit. When His Honor was consulted in regard to the ordinance—and that he was consulted is a matter of publicity—he suggested that in the second section should be incorporated a provision to the effect that the parties drafted and to whom the $300 were to be paid, should not receive the money until they had been mustered into the service of the United States, and were sent to a rendezvous. That this provision is eminently proper and absolutely necessary, is proven by the suggestive fact that the late Comptroller estimated of the half million appropriated for bounties by the City, four-fifths or four hundred thousand dollars were paid to parties who evaded service after receipt, either by skedaddling or skulkage! His Honor the Mayor requested that the provision referred to should be incorporated in the second section. The consultation of His Honor with those drawing the ordinance, and his concurrence in its general provisions, has created the impression that, as it exists, he approves of it. But this essential provision, on which he was most tenacious, has, from a misapprehension of his views, been omitted from the second section, where it should most apply, and been incorporated in the fifth, where it is only applicable to volunteers. A caucus of the Common Council will be held this morning, whereat, it is supposed, this and other suggestions of His Honor will be semi-officially considered. That, characterized as they are by sagacity and prudence, and sustained as they will be by the public, they will receive courteous and approving attention, we have no doubt. In that event, there will be but a brief delay before the formal adoption of the amendments, and the ordinance will become a fixed fact, with His Honor's approval.

Incidents at Quarantine.

The steamship Alabama, in the service of the United States, arrived at Lower Quarantine some ten days ago, and was anchored, and still remains there. She had been cruising between the West Indies and Charleston, and returned with 134 officers and men, 15 of whom have since died of yellow fever. Dr. GUNN, our efficient and valuable Health Officer, at once transhipped the well men and hospitaled the sick, sealed down the hatches, placing six "ship-keepers" on board. Three of these have since been attacked with the fever, and two have died. The vessel was the most infected of any reaching this port, and it is not known whether it was so infected at Havana or Key West. The Health Officer has written to the Navy Department, requesting that she be sent north as soon and as far as possible to catch the earliest frost, as the only way to redeem her from the pest. Not an article either in the way of arms, ammunition or clothing has he allowed to be removed from her by officers or men.

Of the four engineers on board, three were taken with the fever and died. The fourth, also ill with it, stood at his post, aided by the firemen, (we regret not learning his name,) and the moment the vessel dropped anchor—having nerved and sustained himself to this point—yielded to it and became temporarily insane. His last act was to stop the vessel. He was taken to the Hospital, and will recover. This is a fact which deserves the attention of the Navy Department. It exhibited a fidelity to duty rarely met with, and for the correctness of the statement we will vouch.

Meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Health.

A meeting of the Commissioners of Health was held at the Mayor's Office yesterday, at which it was reported by Health Officer GUNN that no infected vessels had arrived at the Port during the past week. The health and condition of the City were reported excellent, no contagious diseases existing to any extent. A complaint was made by the citizens of Tompkinsville, S. I., of the dumping of offal along shore, which was referred to the City Inspector with power. This last complaint is one of too frequent occurrence, and now that Inspector BOOLE holds the reins there will be a prompt and effective remedy applied.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

ARRESTS FOR GRAND LARCENY.—MARGARET MCCONNELL, an inmate of a Water-street dance-house, was arrested yesterday, by Officer DONNELLY, of the Fourth Precinct, charged with stealing from MICHAEL FALLON the sum of $50 in Treasury notes. Alderman MCCOOL, acting magistrate at the Tombs, committed the accused in default of $500 bail.....ANN WOODS was taken into custody by Officer WILSON, of the Eighth Precinct, charged with stealing a silver watch valued at $20, and $15 in cash, from JOSEPH W. SCHOOLEY, a member of the Fifth regiment of Wisconsin Volunteers. The accused acknowledged taking the watch, which was afterward recovered at a pawnshop in Grand-street. The money is still missing. Justice QUACKENBUSH committed her for trial.....NELLIE J. STANLEY, a dancer at one of the Broadway concert saloons, was arrested by Officer GILBERT, of the Tenth Precinct, on the complaint of HELEN ALBERT, of No. 7 Duane-street, who charges that NELLIE stole from her a trunk containing clothing valued at $60. She was committed in default of $500 bail.

ROBBED DURING THE RIOTS.—JACOB KRESLING and JOHN WEIDEL were yesterday brought before Justice QUACKENBUSH, charged with robbery during the riots. The complainant was Mr. FREDERICK SCHNEIDER, of No. 311 West Forty-fourth-street, who alleges that on the 15th of July, the third day of the riot, the prisoners came into his bakery, at the above number, and demanded $8, at the same time threatening to destroy his house and kill him if the demand was not complied with. They gave him ten minutes in which to make up his mind, and if, at the end of that time, the money was not forthcoming, they would call in a large crowd and have his house demolished. The complainant being in fear of his life gave them the money, with which they left. The accused were committed for trial.

A REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE.—A few months since three persons purchased a piece of ground in Greenwood Cemetery, which they subsequently partitioned off to their mutual satisfaction. Last week, on three successive days—Thursday, Friday and Saturdays—the parties to this arrangement were all laid to rest in their respective lots. They belonged to different families and were in no way connected. One was the late B. M. WHITLOCK, another the widow of a former merchant of this City, and the other was a young bridegroom who, after only a fortnight's taste of matrimonial happiness, returned from a bridal trip to Niagara Falls to fall a sudden victim to disease, and was thus early summoned into a world where they neither marry nor are given in marriage.

PROTECTION OF HARLEM RIVER BRIDGES.—A Committee of gentlemen from the Westchester County border of Harlem River, waited upon Mayor OPDYKE yesterday, to obtain some special protection for Central Bridge, (better known as McComb's Dam Bridge,) on the Harlem River, in view of further violence in spite at the draft. They reported that they have reason to believe that an anti-draft organization of Irish laborers exists in their locality, who design destroying public property and otherwise acting riotously in the suburbs, to show their opposition to the draft, while not daring to face the strong force of military and police in the City. The Mayor could do nothing for them, but referred them to the Police Commissioners.

REBEL WOUNDED SOLDIERS ON DAVID'S ISLAND.—There is a great want among the 3,000 soldiers on this Island of hats, shoes, canes and crutches. Many of them are confined in the hospitals in consequence thereof. Rev. Mr. GOSS, of the Christian Alliance, has agreed to coöperate with the officers on the Island to raise some of these necessary articles. Contributions may be sent to the care of HART and FANNING, No. 4 Burling-slip.

CITY MORTALITY.—The total number of deaths in this City during the past week was 659, of which 531 were children. This is a decrease of 111 from the deaths of the week previous, and an increase of 174 over those of the corresponding week last year. This is also an increase of 172 over the average deaths for ten years.

There were 201 deaths from cholera infantum, 44 from Bilious convulsions, 35 from Cholera, 34 from dysentery, 33 from scarlet fever, 31 from typhoid and 16 from typhus fever, 9 from the effects of the heat, and 36 from sunstroke, 14 from inflammation of the bowels, and 27 from inflammation of the brain, 66 from consumption, 47 from infantile marasmus, 29 from disease of the brain, and 2 died from wounds inflicted in the riot.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO A DEAF AND DUMB BOY.—About 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon, as the Express train on the Hudson River Railroad was passing One Hundred and Sixty-third-street, the engine struck a deaf and dumb boy named JOHN WELSH, aged 8 years, who was standing on the track. He was knocked down and severely injured about the head and arms, and one of his legs was broken. The victim was conveyed to the Deaf and Dumb Asylum in the vicinity, where he belonged. His parents reside in Saratoga County, this State.

RESIGNATION OF A POLICE CAPTAIN.—Capt. ALBERT M. PALMER, of the Twenty-first Precinct Police, yesterday tendered his resignation to the Board of Commissioners, and the same was accepted. Sergt. CORNELIUS BURDICK, of the Broadway squad, has been appointed to fill the vacant Captaincy. The latter is a brave and efficient officer. During the July riots Capt. MILLS was absent from the City, and Sergt. BURDICK had the sole command of the squad during that eventful week. The valuable services then rendered by him and his men will be long remembered by the people of this City.

AN INCENDIARY FIRE.—Between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Officer DESMOND, of the Fourth Precinct, discovered a fire breaking out on the second floor of premises No. 59 Frankfort-street, occupied by W. L. COOPER, dealer in leather. An examination plainly revealed the fact that the fire was the work of an incendiary, it having been kindled both on the second and third floors in the rear. The damage by fire and water will amount to about $300. Fully insured.

A CHILD SCALDED—GROSS CARELESSNESS.—Coroner NAUMANN held an inquest yesterday on the body of JOHN G. MAYER, a child aged three years, that died at the residence of its parents, No. 565 Ninth-avenue, from injuries received by accidentally falling into a kettle of boiling water. The jury, in their verdict, censured ELIZA MAYER for gross carelessness, in leaving the kettle of boiling water on the walk where the child was playing.

COLORED TROOPS IN NEW-YORK.—Col. JOHN B. MONTGOMERY some time since applied to the War Department for permission to organize a regiment of colored cavalry in this State. The response to this application has just been received, to the effect that "the Department does not intend to authorize the raising of colored troops in the State of New-York at present."

LIBERAL DONATION.—The Delaware and Raritan Canal and Camden and Amboy Railroad and Transportation Companies have donated $30,000, and placed it at the disposal of the Governor of New-Jersey, for the purpose of forwarding troops as speedily as possible to meet the call recently made upon the State by the Federal Government.

A CHILD DROWNED.—Coroner WILDEY held an inquest yesterday on the body of a girl aged five years, named MINA WIGAND, whose parents reside at No. 61 Greenwich-street. The deceased was accidentally drowned on Sunday last at the foot of Barclay-street.

A NEGRO DROWNED.—The same Coroner was also called to hold an inquest on the body of a colored man, who was accidentally drowned at Central Bridge, near Harlem.

BROKE A SHAFT.—The steamer Metropolis, of the Fall River line, did not arrive yesterday morning until late, having, when off Watch Hill, broke her shaft.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

THE MILITIA UNDER ARMS.—The different militia regiments comprising the Fifth and Eleventh brigades were ordered to be in readiness for active service yesterday. The different organizations met at their respective armories during the day or evening. The Thirteenth and Twenty-eighth met at the City Armory, corner of Henry and Cranberry streets; the Twenty-third and Fifty-second met at the armory corner of Fulton and Orange streets; the Fifty-sixth, at the armory in Raymond-street; the Seventieth, at the arsenal in Portland-avenue; and the Forty-seventh at their armory in the Eastern District. Strong guards were detailed last night at all the armories and places where arms and military accoutrements are stored. The regiments are to report at their respective headquarters daily, and to keep themselves in readiness to act at short notice. Since the return of the militia from Pennsylvania and Maryland, one company of each regiment has been kept on constant duty in guarding different places. Now the entire force will be kept under arms until all apprehension of danger growing out of the enforcement of the draft has ceased. The Police are also held in readiness by order of the General Superintendent until further directions.

It is not known when the draft will be commenced in Brooklyn, no orders having yet been received by the Provost-Marshals.

STREET-WALKERS SENT TO THE PENITENTIARY.—The Police of the Forty-first Precinct made a raid upon the street-walkers in Fulton-avenue on Monday night, and arrested eleven on the charge of indecent behavior in the public streets. They were brought before Justice PERRY yesterday morning, and severally disposed of as follows: Susan MCGILL, six months, Penitentiary; Letitia MCELRATH, Anna Dougherty, Elizabeth Finnegan, Sarah McLaughlin, Elizabeth Farrell and Maria McLaughlin, four months each to the Penitentiary; Ellen Kearney, case adjourned; Bridget Kelly, Mina Stewart and Anna Thornton were discharged with a reprimand.

ABANDONMENT.—A man named ANDREW MCCABE was arrested in the City Park on Monday night, for drunkenness. He resided at No. 1 Navy-street, but had not been at home for two days. His two children, boys, aged 4 and 7, were found locked up in the room and nearly famished for want of food. The youngest is blind. They were sent to the Almshouse, and the father was sent to jail.

FIFTY-SECOND REGIMENT.—There has been much sickness among the members of this regiment, and several deaths, since their return from the States of Pennsylvania and Maryland. Those of the officers who recently died were Capts. GREEN, WALSH and DENNIS, and six other officers are sick from camp fever contracted during the campaign. Several of the privates have also died from similar causes.

Williamsburgh.

PRESENTATION TO A PROVOST.—On Monday evening last the employes of Provost-Marshal SAMUEL T. MADDOX, of the Eleventh Congressional District, of Kings County, presented him with a gold hunting case watch, chain and seal. The presentation took place at the residence of Mr. JOHN E. DAVISON, in Second-street, Brooklyn, E. D. A speech was made by Mr. S. H. MELLIS, to which the recipient feelingly responded. The value of the gift is about $300, a very appropriate recognition of the efficiency, impartiality, and courtesy with which Marshal MADDOX has performed his duties in the preliminaries of conscription.

THE FORTY-SEVENTH.—By order of Major-Gen. DUNTER, of the Second Division, N. Y. S. M., the Forty-seventh regiment of Brooklyn, E. D., was under arms yesterday, last night, and are to be kept in readiness at the armory during the balance of the week in case of emergency.

NEW-JERSEY.

THE $14,000 ROBBERY—ARREST OF THE ALLEGED PRINCIPAL.—It will be recollected that some four weeks since a Pennsylvanian, who was supposed to have left his State to avoid the Conscription, was robbed at the Erie Railway station in Jersey City, of a carpet-bag containing $14,000 in greenbacks. Since that time, Chief of Police REILY and Detective KILCAULEY have been engaged in ferreting out the principal, a notorious thief known as "Deaf NED." They finally got traces of his whereabouts and yesterday morning about 8 o'clock succeeded in taking him into custody at a rendezvous for thieves in Laurens-street, near Bleecker, in New-York. The accused was committed to the Hudson County jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

A NEW TICKET ARRANGEMENT ON THE NEW-JERSEY RAILROAD.—A new ticket arrangement which has recently gone into force on the New-Jersey Railroad is giving rise to a vast amount of grumbling and ill-natured talk among those compelled to pass over that route. The exact nature of the arrangement is altogether too complicated to render a description possible, but the general result of it may be gathered from the fact that it compels commuters to obtain their tickets from their pockets six times a day, if they come from Newark to this City and return. This, of course, obstructs the movements of passengers, especially between the cars and boats, and the delay is very naturally the greatest at the time when expedition is called for the most. The Company, it is said, allege that the new system is rendered necessary to check the depredations of dishonest conductors; but the passengers reply that they should not be made to suffer for delinquencies of that kind by losing from ten to fifteen minutes, which to many of them is part of the most valuable portion of the day. The Jersey City papers have taken up the quarrel against the Company, and their columns abound in spirited squibs from sufferers, and in energetic editorials denouncing monopolies in general. As yet there is no indication that the Company designs modifying its plans in consequence of the arguments which have thus been presented, and it is very difficult to see how the aggrieved passengers can help themselves.

THE ALLEGED KIDNAPPING CASE.—The examination of Mr. SHADBOLT, of Washington, charged with kidnapping his child from his wife in New-York, was to have taken place before Recorder MARTINDALE, of Jersey City, yesterday. In the meantime Mrs. S. had recovered possession of the child, and withdrawing the complaint, the accused was discharged.

RECRUITING.—Over 400 men have already been enlisted in Jersey City, leaving about 193 men to fill out the quota. Over 300 men are now at Camp Parker, in Hudson City. The quota will undoubtedly be filled within the required time.

NO EXTENSION OF TIME.—It is stated from a reliable source, that Gov. PARKER intends to proceed at once and enforce the draft at the expiration of the thirty days allowed by Government, which will be in a week.

TUESDAY, Aug. 18—P. M.

The day has been one of more excitement and irregularity in the Stock market than any which has come within the limits of our experience, and the sales at the Board and outside have been immense. William-street, between Exchange-place and Beaver-street, has been so crowded throughout the day, that it was almost impossible to force a passage through it, and prices have varied so much from hour to hour as to make it almost impossible to keep a record of the market. The greatest fluctuation has been in Harlem old stock. After selling as high as 174½ yesterday, it opened at the First Board, today, at 167; it was sold down there to 158, and report says in the Street as low as 155, rallying again at the close to 162½@163; selling at the 1 o'clock Public Board at 167@168, and commenced at the Second Regular Board at 165, and went down to 160@161 at the close of the call. New-York Central was more steady. The prices standing at 132½@131½ at the First Board, 132½ at 1 o'clock, and closing at the Second at 133. Erie was the firmest stock of the day. It opened at 111½, 1½ higher than yesterday; sold on the morning call at 112½, and worked its way up to 116 at the Second Board. The Preferred Stock advanced from 105½ yesterday, to 107. Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne took the turn downward at the morning Board, selling as low as 89 against 93 yesterday; recovered to 92½@92¾ at the Public Board, and receded again to 89½@90 at the second regular session. Southern old was likewise lower. Having sold at 112 yesterday, it began today at 108½@109, and and after rallying to 110@110¼, sold in the afternoon at 109½@109½. Milwaukee and Prarie du Chien was sold down to 87 in the morning, but recovered to 89 in the afternoon, ½ lower than last evening. Toledo and Wabash advanced from 80 yesterday to 84@85. Cleveland and Pittsburgh fell to 99, 1½ decline, then advanced to 103½@103¾, and settled down to 102¾ at the Second Board.

At 4 o'clock the following prices were made in comparison with last night's quotations:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Gov. SEYMOUR'S Proclamation regarding the draft, alluded to yesterday, is published this morning. The Governor still clings to the idea that the constitutionality of the draft should have been tested before putting it in force, but is explicit enough in warning his "friends" against any riotous opposition to it. The draft will certainly commence this forenoon at 10 o'clock, as previously announced.

Rebel news from Charleston to the 16th inst., two days later than received from our own side, reaches us by way of Chattanooga. The Rebel, printed in that city, on the 16th published dispatches announcing that a general bombardment by GILLMORE'S batteries and the iron-clads was commenced on the day previous—Saturday—and was awful in its character; that the fire was chiefly directed against Sumter, and that the fight was still going on when the Rebel was put to press. The officer who communicates to the Government the contents of the Rebel, says that the editor, instead of making any boast about the result or manifesting the least jubilant feeling over the situation of affairs at Charleston, exhibits the most positive evidence of gloom. We shall probably have news by dispatch boat at Fortress Monroe in the course of a day or two.

The impression prevailed in the Army of the Potomac yesterday that the rebels were preparing for a cavalry movement in our rear, to destroy railroad communication with Washington. We judge they will not find the road an easy one to travel.

The Washington Republican states that on Friday night last a small squad of rebels made a dash into Poolesville, in Maryland, and captured the telegraph operator and his instruments, and did some damage to the wires. They proceeded to rob some of the stores, when the operator made his escape. The robbers, it is believed, did not come from Virginia, but belong in Maryland, and do not live far from Poolesville. They move about as citizens in the day time, and practice midnight robberies under the plea that they belong to the rebel army. On Sunday evening a number of MOSEBY'S guerrillas attempted to attack one of the Government farms at Fall's Church, for the purpose of stealing some horses, but being fired upon by the guard, they ingloriously skedaddled. The rebels were commanded by MOSEBY in person.

The latest report of BRAGG locates him at Chattanooga, in command of only 25,000 men—he having lost some 10,000 by desertion during and succeeding his recent retreat. JOE JOHNSTON is still reported at Enterprise and Brandon, Miss., also with 25,000 men. One-third of his force is said to have deserted. West Tennessee is now reported clear of guerrillas. Our latest dispatches from the Southwest state that Gov. FOSTER, of Alabama, has issued an address to the citizens of that State urging the impressment of slaves into the rebel service.

The Leavenworth (Kansas) Inquirer of August 14, says that the fate of Gen. BLUNT'S gallant army at Fort Gibson is decided ere this. Our last news was up to August 2, and a battle seemed imminent. Since that time, unless delayed by swollen streams, the ammunition train and the Thirteenth Kansas have reached Fort Blunt. If not previously attacked, Gen. BLUNT would then become the assailing party. Gen. SCHOFIELD has not reinforced our troops. He ordered a retreat, and Gen. BLUNT took the responsibility of disobeying it.

The Louisville Journal learns by a private telegram from Cincinnati that the Ninth Army Corps, Maj.-Gen. BURNSIDE'S fighting veterans, arrived in that city on Saturday, from Vicksburgh.

FROM EUROPE.

By the steamship Asia, which passed Cape Race on Sunday evening, we receive advices from Europe two days later. She left Liverpool on the 8th, and Queenstown on the 9th inst. The London Globe announces, apparently upon authority, that no authentic intelligence has been received giving any assurance to the statement that the American conscription was a menace to England. It says there is no interruption of the general amity between the two countries. This statement was called out by the republication in the London Post of a Washington dispatch which originally appeared in one of the New-York morning dailies. The rebel loan on the 7th was quoted at 27@25 discount, but it subsequently rallied two or three per cent. on the news taken out by the Persia, which was imagined to be more favorable to the rebels. The three Powers, England, France and Austria, the London Times says, have agreed to send a common note to Russia, regarding the Polish question. An iron ram building for Russia, in England, has been hurried off to Russia in an incomplete condition, in anticipation of eventualities. A council of war had been held in St. Petersburgh, at the close of which the Vienna and Warsaw Railway had been seized for the transportation of troops for one week. The Paris Bourse was again excited. The Rentes had declined ¾ per cent. It is reported that Prussia declines to meet with the German Kings to consent in regard to a reorganization of the German Confederation. Several tenders have been made to the American Telegraph Company for the laying of their new cable. Specimens of cotton grown in Java had been received in England, equal to fair middling American. The Liverpool Cotton market is reported firm, with an upward tendency. Breadstuffs quiet, and Provisions firm. Consols were quoted at 92¼@92¾.

GENERAL NEWS.

A political gathering took place at Rochester yesterday, attended by delegates from several States, including Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland and Wisconsin—about thirty in all being present. The meeting appears to be preliminary to organizing in the different States the old Whig and Bell-Everett elements. A secret conference was held in the afternoon, at which the conclusion was arrived at that the restoration of peace and the reestablishment of the Union can only be effected by an organization of the "conservative" elements of the North upon a platform similar to that of the Union Democracy of Kentucky. The Convention will continue to-day.

The Board of Supervisors had a short session yesterday, but transacted considerable business. The Comptroller transmitted additional claims for damages during the riots, numbered from 1,358 to 1,564. The Police Commissioners sent in bills amounting to $10,624 63, for expenses incurred during the riots. The Board adopted an ordinance to raise money to cover the damages incurred by the riots. It appropriates one million dollars, and such further sum as may be required for the purpose, and authorizes the Comptroller to borrow the money on "Riot Damage Indemnity Bonds," redeemable on or before Aug. 1, 1884. The Board passed over the Mayor's veto, the resolutions authorizing the Harlem Bridge Committee to confer with the Westchester Supervisors with a view to fixing the cost of the bridge to be charged to Weschester Company, and also fixing the Weschester terminus. Adjourned to Tuesday next.

The conscripts at Rochester held an adjourned meeting on Saturday evening, which was marked with the best feeling. Resolutions were passed emphatically indorsing the Conscription law, and recommending the Common Council to appropriate $207,300 for the relief of the families of such of the conscripts who might be in indigent circumstances.

A committee of five gentlemen—members of the Washington Union League—waited upon the President, at his private residence, at "Soldiers' Home," on Saturday last, in relation to the case of Lieut. A. J. SANBORN, who was murdered in cold blood at Norfolk, Va., by a secessionist, known as Dr. WRIGHT. The Chairman of the Committee, Col. TURNER, having introduced his colleagues to the President, presented an address, setting forth the enormity of WRIGHT'S crime, and expressing the hope that the condign punishment which he merited would be administered. The President, in response, said that "an example would prove a great benefit to the cause," and added that strict justice should be meted out to all guilty parties. He remarked that he had been requested to pardon Dr. WRIGHT, but that he had not yet examined the evidence, although he understood it had been forwarded to him.

An extraordinarily heavy business was transacted in Stocks, yesterday. Prices had been quite unsettled, rising and falling rapidly, but at the close were comparatively firm. Money was in more demand, and the prevailing rate for call loans was 6 ₩ cent. Gold opened at 125¾ and fell to 125, under the favorable reports from Charleston. Sterling Exchange was 138½@138¾.

The Dry Goods auction sales commenced for the Fall trade yesterday, Messrs. KOBBE & CORLIES offering a miscellaneous catalogue of 304 lots, and Messrs. HAGGERTY & Co. of 814 lots. In the latter was included a lot of two thousand Vienna broche long shawls, imported by PASSAVANT & Co., and some lines of British and Saxony goods, linen handkerchiefs, &c. The shawls and dress goods met with a brisk competition and were sold at satisfactory prices.

Flour was more active, and desirable lots were firm. Wheat and Corn were less freely dealt in, the former at easier and the latter at a shade higher prices. A very moderate business was reported in Cotton, Hides, Oils, Metals, Fish, Fruit, Candles, Naval Stores, Wool, Whalebone and the principal kinds of Provisions. Groceries were more sought after. Hay, Whisky, Tallow, Leather and Tobacco were salable and steady. Freights continued quiet.

The Live Stock Markets have been more largely supplied with animals this week than during any previous week since last March. The cooler weather has improved the demand, however, so that nearly all the 31,700 head destined for slaughter, have been sold, though at declining rates for cattle and hogs. The beef cattle numbered 3,602, which is the largest supply reported for a single week since September, 1862. With the exception of about 200 sent out to graze, they were all sold, prices averaging about ½c. ₩ lb. lower than one week ago. Good fat cattle have brought 10c.@10½c. ₩ lb., net or estimated dressed weight, though very good steers were sold at 9c. before the close of the Forty-fourth-street market. Ordinary cattle ranged from 7½c. to 8½c., while some poor animals were sold as low as 6½c. Average of the entire sales was about 8¾c.... Sheep and lambs arrive freely and are in good demand in this weather, selling a shade higher than last week. Good stock commands 5½c.@6c. ₩ lb., live weight. Some fat sheep 6c.....Live hogs are too plenty for the Summer season, though the present change to cooler weather will help to work off the stock on hand. Prices of corn-fed hogs range from 4c.@4½c. ₩ lb., live weight, and 3½c.@3¾c. for still-fed hogs, a decline of a ½c. during the week past.

The Polish Insurrection and American Opinion.

We warn our readers against the English statement of the facts of the present Polish revolution. Without Russian journals, and with very few other means of learning the Russian version of affairs, we are obliged to depend almost entirely upon the London Times, and other British prints, for our current information. Their dominant spirit is anti-Russian. This, in itself, would not vitiate their testimony; but it happens that nearly all of them, and the Times especially, have an inveterate habit of lying without scruple whenever their inclinations prompt.

We Americans need no proof of this. It has come practically home in the incessant and remorseless mendacity which these same journals have practiced toward ourselves and our cause. The London Times, as we all know, during the last two years has made it its chief study to pervert and distort and falsify the character and the history of our great civil conflict. Its editorial columns it has given up to the sophistication of the clearest principles, and its news columns to the misstatement of the plainest facts. Its special correspondents sent out to us, ostensibly to observe on the spot, have been compelled to lie without stint on peril of losing their places.

We here in New-York have had the acquaintance of one of these mercenaries. Years ago a man of some literary and moral merit, he was bought, body and soul, by the London Times establishment, and put to the work of lying down the loyal cause in America. He has done it to the best of his ability. He has invented and perverted with inexhaustible ingenuity and impudence. MOLIERE'S Scapin was scrupulous in comparison. This person will deny the existence of what every man in New-York saw with his own eyes, and, with equal audacity, will affirm what no man in New-York ever even so much as dreamed of. His exploits here have given us new ideas of the human faculty of lying. They have enabled us to estimate better than ever before the sort of capacity which is most in quest among English journals in the choice of their "special correspondents." Inspecting Dr. MACKEY, we get a very clear idea of the whole species.

When we see in the London Times letters from the "special" in Poland, we should understand at once the moral level of their author, and should remember that at best he can but shape his letters to suit his employers. The anti-Russian spirit of the London Times being what it is, there is not a particle of reason why its correspondent in Warsaw should not be presumed to be just as mendacious as we know its correspondent in New-York to be, because of its anti-American spirit. The stories that are told of the barbarities of the Russian Gen. MOURAVIEFF and his subordinates ought to be put at once into the same category with the stories told of the barbarities of the American Gen. BUTLER and the American Cols. TURCHIN and MCNEIL. The accounts of Polish victories which come in nearly every mail should be taken at exactly the same figure as the accounts of Confederate victories which go in every mail. And all the judgments pronounced upon Polish claims to sympathy and Polish prospects of independence should have just the weight of the same judgments upon the Confederate claims and prospects—and no more. Hatred of Russia and hatred of the United States shape all alike.

Now we have no intention of discussing to-day the real merits of this struggle between Russia and Poland. Yet there are a few general considerations which loyal Americans, whose cause has been so faithfully sustained by the Russian Government, ought to bear in mind. Russia is hated by Western Europe for the same reason that America is hated—jealousy of her gigantic growth. Whatever its past history may have been, it is now the most progressive nation in Europe, politically and socially, Italy perhaps excepted. The present Emperor, in his serf emancipation and other corresponding movements, has undertaken a scheme of reform of a boldness and magnitude almost without a parallel in history. Therein he is entitled to the moral support of every friend of progress. Whatever the original wrong of the partition of Poland between Russia, Austria and Prussia, the present Emperor was no party to it. It took place a generation before he was born. On his accession to the throne he found Russian Poland a part of the Russian Empire. It is not pretended that he has governed it with any new severity. On the contrary, he has introduced into his whole civil system many very important ameliorations. It is an undeniable fact that at the time the insurrection broke out, Russian Poland was governed far more liberally than the Polish provinces which had been appropriated by Austria and Prussia. Indeed, what gave this insurrection its peculiar impetus in Russian Poland, was the fact that nearly all of its administrative posts were in the hands of Poles; whereas in Gallicia and Posen, they were nearly all in the hands of Austrians and Prussians. It was precisely the same fact that gave our Confederates their first great advantage.

What the Polish revolutionists claim is not political amelioration, but national independence. They demand that the Russian ruler shall submit to a dismemberment of his empire. They will take nothing less. Americans who are fighting against a similar movement, cannot call in question the Emperor's right to resist. There is still another analogy between his contest and ours. We have always said that but a minority of the Southern people are at heart in favor of the rebellion. In Poland the minority is comparatively much smaller. Out of the twenty millions of Poles, not more than five or six millions are taking any part in the movement. The peasantry are almost universally opposed to it. They believe it to be a movement for the benefit of the nobles, and that their own interests really bind them to Russia, which has so decisively committed itself to the elevation of all the lower classes within its dominions. Their case, in fact, is very much like that of the "poor white trash" in our Southern States, but they are wiser in their action. The latter were drawn into a revolution designed to benefit only the great landholders, but the former have steadfastly held out against all attempts to use them for such a purpose. There has been no nobility in all Europe more utterly selfish, more completely regardless of the comfort and well-being of their vassals than that of Poland; and even up to the very time of the insurrection, they opposed all allotment of land to the peasants, like that secured to the Russian serfs by the imperial edict of emancipation. Undoubtedly there are Democrats in this revolutionary movement—men who would rejoice to throw themselves into any enterprise that promised to break up the present condition of Europe. But those Democrats are not numerous enough to give distinctive character to the struggle. The Polish insurrection is not, in any just sense of the term, a popular revolution—less so in fact than our own Southern rebellion. Our sympathies with it ought to spring from better knowledge of the truth than is afforded by the Russia-hating Press of England.

The Order of the Day.

The commander of this post, Gen. CANBY, has issued a circular defining the duties of the United States troops now stationed in this City and harbor. "Their duties," he says, "are limited to the defence of the forts and the protection of public (Government) property and of the officers of the General Government in the performance of their legal duties. The duty of maintaining order and protecting the property and rights of private individuals, devolves upon the Municipal and State authorities." But if these authorities are unable to maintain order, or if they call for the aid of the United States troops, such aid will be promptly rendered.

We are glad that this circular has been issued and this distinction made. The Constitution specifically provides that the United States "shall protect each State against domestic violence on application of the Legislature or of the Executive." The anti-draft newspapers here seem to regard the troops as enemies, and talk as if it would be a gross outrage for them to interfere for the protection of life and property, when the "people" of New-York chose to amuse themselves by general slaughter and devastation. We have heard of a testy functionary at Washington who, when he learned from three or four of the journals of this City that the riots were a grand popular demonstration sanctioned by citizens generally, urged that if it was the fixed will and pleasure of the people here to fire each others houses and garrote each other, they should be allowed a few days to do so. Gen. CANBY'S circular puts the matter on its proper footing. The protection of property and the maintenance of order reverts in the first instance to the Police and the militia, to the Municipal and State authorities; while the National troops defend Government places and functionaries; and it is only on the failure of the local authorities to do their duty and upon their appeal for aid, that the United States forces will come to their assistance. The Government armories and arsenals, and all places and property under its immediate jurisdiction, the drafting headquarters and draft officials, will be amply protected by Gen. CANBY to-day and as long as they may be threatened. Upon the Police and the militia regiments, acting under the civil authorities, will devolve the duty of maintaining civil order. As the greater part of the militia of the City are under arms and on duty, and as the Police are prepared, we see no reason for doubting that quiet will be maintained, and that there will be no collision of authorities.

North Carolina and the Confederacy.

The leaven of dissatisfaction with the rebel Confederacy, if not the leaven of loyalty, continues to work, and lately more actively than ever, in North Carolina. We have marked from time to time the progress of free speech against the rebel Government in the old North State, and drawn moderate encouragement therefrom; but always warned our readers against too sanguine expectations of active help to the Union cause from that source. We continue to do the same thing. But we are free to say that late signs are more hopeful than any that have gone before. The facts are these: The North Carolina Standard, well known as the organ of Gov. VANCE and of the party that elected him, has published an article of great length, and evidently well matured in language and in argument, "denouncing the treachery of the Confederate leaders," showing the "ill success of their efforts," stating that "portions of only five of the original thirteen [seceded] States remain in the hands of the Confederacy," and proposing that North Carolina "in her sovereign capacity" make "immediate overtures to the United States Government for peace." We give the whole of this important document in the columns of the TIMES to-day.

What is the meaning and effect of this demonstration? Why this, of course. If it is to be accepted as the true voice and movement of the State of North Carolina, in its "sovereign capacity," it is a bolt that shivers the "Confederacy" to atoms. It has always been apparent to the most superficial students of Government that the Confederate States had no coherent bond whatever. The very beginning of their Government lay in the assertion of the absolute sovereignty of the individual States. That sovereignty no Federative covenant could override, and no State action could barter away.

The Constitution of the United States was framed under circumstances of recent and severe discipline which taught the weakness of a confederation of independent States; and the object in framing it was stated to be the securing of a "more perfect Union." The form of acceptance of this Constitution was solemn, and the hesitation of a number of the States showed that the people regarded the gravity of the act they were about to commit in relinquishing a part of their State Sovereignty to form a perpetual Union. Is it at all likely, if the States had supposed that, in case of dissatisfaction, they might withdraw from the Union at pleasure, they would have debated the step so long and joined at last so thoughtfully?

But, notwithstanding the reason of the case and the facts of history, the Union was at last disturbed and thrown into civil war by leaders who maintained the absolute sovereignty of the States and their right to secede from the Union at will. The Southern Confederacy was established by States openly maintaining this doctrine; and they went to war to vindicate it. Now, North Carolina, having fought two years side by side with her sister Confederate States, to establish the right of secession, chooses herself to exercise it. We should like to see the reply of the Richmond Enquirer, or of any rebel print, or of J. P. BENJAMIN, or of JEFF. DAVIS himself, to this pronunciamiento of the North Carolina seceders. Its right is self-evident. No logic is sharp enough to penetrate the argument, or gain the slightest leverage by which to overthrow it. The only way to meet it—the only way probably in which it will be met—will be by abuse of North Carolina for deserting her "Southern sisters" in their extremity, and seeking alliance with the "depraved and mercenary Yankees." But this weapon has been so often used that it is greatly blunted now. Such slang was effective before the war, but swords are sharper and cannon balls are stronger, and North Carolina has become wise enough to discern the difference.

The "end" in North Carolina will be looked for with daily increasing interest. It is clear that the North Carolina Standard is in revolt against the so-called Confederate States. If it speaks for Gov. VANCE and his party, it speaks for a majority of the people; and the disintegration of the Confederacy from internal discontent is a fore-ordained fact that must speedily be witnessed.

WHEAT IN FRANCE.—In the budget of late foreign news are two items side by side, of singular contradiction, in regard to the Bread prospects in Paris. One paragraph says: "Some excitement was produced in the Paris Corn market by the report that the Czar had prohibited the export of corn and flour from the Russian Empire." The immediately succeeding and reassuring sentence is: "The prospect of the French harvest is so good that there is a probability wheat may be exported from France, rather than a necessity exist for its importation."

The question is, why, if the latter statement is true, should there be "excitement" over the reported withholding of the usual supplies from Russia? It is much more probable that the report of "abundant harvests" in France, and the prospects of selling breadstuffs instead of buying, is put out by the government of the Emperor to keep down prices until it shall have laid up all it is likely to need in case war with Russia is begun.

The instincts of the Paris Corn Exchange show how a European war would operate on the question of bread. Neither England nor France can dispense with the wheat received from America and Russia; and consequently the danger of war in Europe will always modify the diplomacy of France and England toward the United States. If there is war in Europe we shall have no trouble with either Power.

THE GOVERNOR AND PUBLIC ORDER.—We are glad to be able to give the Governor of the State of New-York the credit of a purpose to secure public order and uphold the execution of the laws. Some may think this rather a questionable sort of praise; but we have fallen upon such times that no man or community can feel secure that those who threaten it may not spring the mine under their feet and hurl them to destruction. The organs which claim to be the Governor's, and the faction of which he is a leader, have within the last two months used language so seditious, revolutionary and atrocious—have made such inflammatory appeals to incite the excitable, and such mendacious statements to deceive the ignorant—have exhibited such contempt for the laws, the Constitution and the Government, such disregard for the public welfare, public rights and the public peace—that many people dreaded the result, and feared there was too much truth in the claim put forth by these organs, that the Governor would actively side with their schemes, or else that he would wink at them. But, independently of the threats of his friends, or of his action, there has latterly been a feeling of security, from the knowledge that the Government had determined to put forth its power to execute the laws, and to punish active resistance thereto, which is treason, as well in New-York as in Virginia; and in this direction the proclamation of Gen. DIX has been a great aid.

Gov. SEYMOUR announces that he has received information that the draft is about to be made in New-York and Brooklyn, and he understands that there is danger of disorder and riot, against which he urges various cogent reasons, and concludes by announcing that riotous proceedings must and shall be suppressed, and by admonishing judicial and executive officers to take vigorous and effective measures to put down any riotous or unlawful assemblages, and further sets forth that the militia and the whole power of the State will be employed to preserve public order.

A SENSATION CANVASS.—There is always very great danger in trying to conduct any affair of life on "sensation" principles. A sensation once started must be maintained to the full stretch of its original tension, if anything is expected to be made of it. Few men get to understand this. BARNUM is a notable instance of success in the list of showmen. He made a sensation with "Joyce Heth"—a greater one with the "woolly horse"—a greater one with JENNY LIND—a greater one with the "What is it?"—a greater one with MINNIE WARREN and Commodore NUTT—and certainly a greater one, in this torrid temperature, with LIZZIE HARRIS and her 678 pounds of seething human flesh. It is by sustaining his rôle that BARNUM has succeeded, and that "any other man" must succeed.

It occurs to us that the Ohio friends of VALLANDIGHAM are discovering the philosophy of humbugs and trying to avail themselves of it. But too late. They commenced their canvass with a great sensation—the exile of this chief to the "Confederacy" and his immediate nomination to be Governor of a loyal State. Here was a startling dénouement in prospect: VALLANDIGHAM elected Governor of Ohio—the President having banished him as a rebel, could not recognise him in his new position—but VALLANDIGHAM runs the blockade, is received in triumph and in transports by the freemen of Ohio—and reports himself to headquarters at Washington as one of the powers of the land without whom Mr. LINCOLN would be powerless in his place as President! What a scene! Encore.

But the plot did not go along as desired. It dragged heavily from the start, and was fairly "damned" before the second act (VALLANDIGHAM'S running the blockade) was closed. The Ohio yeomanry are just now in a frightful chill, and refuse to play the third part at all as prescribed; and the whole affair is about to be hissed off the stage. The cause is manifest. The "sensations" were not thick and fast enough. The first one exhausted the play-maker's resources; and since then all is dull and dead. An effort is making to recast the piece by an impromptu effort, and bring out VALLANDIGHAM committed to a thorough war policy on the part of the Government! This is said to be surely the scheme of his partisans in Ohio at present. But great as will be the "sensation," it is too late. The melodrama is "played out," and the first and last martyr of Northern secession will remain some years, we apprehend, a citizen of Queen VICTORIA'S domain, and by no means a loyal Governor of Ohio.

FRAUDULENT EXEMPTIONS.—The administration of the Conscription law in other States has brought to light many of the deceits and frauds by which it is sought to be evaded, and the officers of the Government should benefit by the knowledge thus gained. It is an unpleasant thing to acknowledge, but, nevertheless, it is true that perjury is not unfrequently committed, not only in regard to the residence, but physicial condition and domestic relations of the drafted persons who seek exemption. A man can only be drafted in his legal domicile, that is, where he has his residence. Many thousands in New-York have a residence quite as easily in one Ward as another, if anything is to be gained by the change. Inasmuch, therefore, as a man living, and drafted say, in the Sixth Ward, is exempt if he is found really to live or have his residence in the First or Fourth, or any other Ward, it will require close watching to fix the domicile of many conscripts. So in regard to other quibbles and tricks. A hopeful youth in Philadelphia gained exemption because he was "the only son of his widowed mother," and her "dependence for support," &c. An investigation showed the mother to be a thrifty and flourishing proprietress of a grocery store, who supported the graceless son in idleness. But his papers were all regular, and the certificate of exemption had been issued. It is proper to state, it was speedily canceled, and the youth at last accounts was hunting a substitute.

The efficacy of the draft and its popular support will depend largely on its impartial administration, and officers cannot be too careful to see that no one defeats it by unworthy means.

PENNSYLVANIA POLITICS.

The Canvass for Governor—Copperhead Meeting at Easton—Venomous Speeches by Heister Clymer and Ex-United States Senator Brodhead.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

EASTON, Northampton County, Penn., Monday, Aug. 17, 1863.

This ancient and quiet borough, situated at the mouth of the Lehigh Valley, and at the confluence of the Lehigh and Delaware Rivers, the capital of the county, the seat of its public buildings and of Lafayette College, and numbering about thirteen thousand inhabitants, has had a visitation in the shape of a Democratic meeting. The meeting was called to take into consideration "the interests of the Democratic party." The principal speaker, Hon HEISTER CLYMER, of Berks County, however, did not confine himself particularly to "the interests of the party," but seemed mainly disposed to visit the direst punishment upon the Republicans for all the wrongs he says they "have been pleased to heap upon Democrats, because they were Democrats. Mr. CLYMER is a very bitter speaker and very theatrical in his gesticulations and pronunciation. Invective is his forte. He is very prolific in epithets. He uses them very freely. He becomes thoroughly warmed with his subject. He grates his teeth and looks very sincere, at the same time very severe, and the people believe. He abounds in iteration and assumption. He commenced with the foundation of the Republic, and brought us up through the historic and glorious past, to the (to him) humble present, when ANDREW G. CURTIN is Governor of this Commonwealth, and ABRAM LINCOLN President of the United States, and when all things are wrong because they two are Governor and President. He did not attempt to prove any one of these trifling charges. He merely made an assertion, struck two or more consecutive attitudes, looked as though he was throttling some inoffensive man whose skin was not the color of his own—paused—and the Democrats assembled believed, because they wanted to believe, what the learned speaker assumed. He said that the Democrats, at the breaking out of the war, gave the present Administration their support to enable them to suppress the rebellion, because they then thought that the war would be conducted according to the Constitution and the laws. But they had been deceived—this had not been done. Innumerable acts—such as confiscation, emancipation, &c.,—had been committed sufficient to alienate from the Administration the feelings and the support of the Democratic party. He did not enumerate any other acts to justify or excuse his unmeasured abuse of the Administration and its "minions." He said so, and it was so, for all his purposes—which, besides being for "the interests of the party," were probably for the "interest" of Gen. W. WOODWARD, and against those of ANDREW G. CURTIN and those "who think and feel as he does. Mr. CLYMER made no attempt to argue, on their merits, any of the issues which divide the sentiments of the people. His speech was a long tirade against those who are in authority—simply, it seemed to me, because they are in authority. His speech was a mass of vituperation and abuse, with no connection except a thread of hatred for the Republicans, permeating every part. He made use of such epithets as the following, applied to such men as Messrs. LINCOLN and CURTIN: Money changers, (this was in a beautiful comparison instituted from the holy Scriptures, in which the Democratic party represented Christ, and the President and his party the money-changers in the tempte,) shoddy patriots, miscreants, thieves, robbers, bastard patriots and many more of the sort which would naturally escape the memory. What he would do with the folks to whom he applies these epithets, may be known by the following: "Hurl them from power, then we'll decide who are traitors;" "We'll strip them of their ill-gotten gains, and send the robbers howling through the land." "You have these miscreants among you, and when we have the control of the Government, they will no more hiss (with peculiar emphasis on the final s) Copperheads at our best citizens; if they do, it will be at their peril." "We'll strip them—beggar them," and the like.

Mr. CLYMER, judging the future by the past, draws hopeful conclusions as to the election of Mr. WOODWARD; and then saith he: "With WOODWARD, of Pennsylvania, SEYMOUR, of New-York, PARKER, of New-Jersey, and the exiled statesman and pure patriot of Ohio, C. L. VALLANDIGHAM, we will defy them at their worst—meaning those horrid gnomes, the Republicans." This expression was very mild, but it conveys a great deal of meaning. I leave your readers to make up their own estimate of what Mr. CLYMER desires and is endeavoring to bring about. I will only say that I think if the gentleman imparted anything of his own spirit to his audience, they were more infuriated than convinced. It was an appeal to the passions and not to the reason. Mr. CLYMER closed amid cheers.

Hon. RICHARD BRODHEAD, Ex-United States Senator, being called upon made a few remarks, in which he warned his hearers not to get into a passion; if they could not convince their opponents, not to try it. He said he thought WOODWARD would be elected. He thought precisely as Mr. CLYMER did about this as well as many other things else. Mr. BRODHEAD was cheered.

Hon. PHILIP JOHNSON, M. C., was also called upon and made a short address. He had always been ready and willing to give his constituents all the information he possessed, and was willing to do so now, but as they met in the Court-house, and as the Court was to sit at four o'clock, the time had arrived to adjourn. He also thought Mr. WOODWARD would be elected. If he was not he (the speaker) would lose his confidence in the intelligence of the people. He expected to speak to them throughout the county before the canvass closed. He was cheered at the close of his speech.

The resolutions adopted by the meeting before the speech-making commenced were highly denunciatory of all that was not Democratic, laudatory of the Constitution and the laws as some Democrats interpret them, but bitter to a fault upon those who are the lawful officers of the law under the Constitution, both State and National. It appeared to your correspondent, from the undue prominence given by these men to "the interests of the party," that much of their laudation of principles and of the Constitution and the laws is but a means to an end—that great end, "the interests of the party."

The Democrats have commenced the contest for the Governorship of this State in earnest. They are lending every nerve to the work. It behooves the real friends of the country to be up and doing for the cause of the Union. We believe it can best be served in this State by a hearty support of the Union nominee for Governor, ANDREW G. CURTIN. We are willing to argue before the people in favor of the principles of which our Governor is representative—the principles of Union and liberty. D. J. G.

THE SPIRIT OF MISSISSIPPI.

There is a gleam of light thrown upon the subject of the state of public feeling in Mississippi, by the following paragraph from the Mobile Evening News:

"The telegraph informed us yesterday that an improved tone of feeling prevails in Mississippi. We are glad to hear this, and wish it may be true, for the intelligence we have recently been receiving from that State is of a very unpleasant character. As a specimen, we give a brief extract from a letter, written by a young lady there, to her father in Mobile:

'There is a rumor that some of the farmers are going to keep their wheat until they can get gold for it; that is, they refuse Confederate money. Several of the rich men are carrying off their negroes and families. I have heard several say they will take the oath of allegiance for the sake of protecting their property, but they will not consider it binding. Mrs. G., however, says she will not take it to preserve property nor for any other reason.'

We regret (continues the editor) that the lady referred to has no children—there is need of more of that stock. From accounts which reach us, it would seem that the women are the only men in Mississippi. Nor are these accounts altogether a new thing, but merely the sequel to the story of the supineness of the stay-at-home population there, which we heard long since, but were unwilling to believe in its full extent. What a blush of shame must mantle the cheeks of the true Mississippians in camp when they hear such reports of the conduct of their brothers! It is not too late for them to retrieve their characters, and we are anxious to be confirmed in the feeble hope that they are beginning to do so."

REBELS COMPLIMENT OUR CAVALRY.

In a letter from the army of LEE, the writer speaks of the opposition made by our cavalry to their attempts to pass through the Blue Ridge. He says:

"It may be remarked in passing that the Federal cavalry have displayed unwonted spirit of late, and have come to be regarded with much more respect than the infantry. To say they were a full match for STUART'S cavalry would hardly be doing them justice."

The Central Park.

The article that appeared in the TIMES of Friday last relative to the Central Park it seems does injustice to those having charge of this noble public work, as well as to their employes. The management of the Park work up to this time has been successful beyond any precedent in our city. The order that is everywhere displayed, the rigid accountability and the prompt attention to the necessities and conveniencies of the public has been the continued theme of admiration.

It is denied that "on the first morning of the July riot one or two of the gangs of workmen employed on the Central Park left their work and marched down the Park, forcing or inducing the other gangs to leave their work and follow them, and that the whole body then proceeded to take part in the business of murder and rapine then going on in the City." The force went to work as usual on Monday morning. The men employed on the Park are not arrayed in one mass, marshaled for battle as with rioters; they are peaceable and intelligent men They are employed at different places on the Park, sometimes one man alone, sometimes two, three, twenty or forty together, in a space about as large as the whole City below Spring-street. At the time the riotous proceedings were culminating further down town the main body of the Park laborers were at work, that is up to Monday noon, after which the work was suspended and the men went to their homes or elsewhere as they pleased, until work was resumed. No rule of the Park was suspended to enable the men to get back to their work.

The discipline of the Park force is in all respects strict and thorough; no disturbance whatever has occurred there during the past year or two of an unsettled condition of the public mind, but the work has proceeded steadily and regularly. There is no instance of a public work so free from disturbance and difficulties so far as its management is concerned.

The work was suspended on Monday of the riot. The Park authorities were ready to have the men go to work again as soon as the men thought it safe to do so, and the forces were at work on the Park at a much earlier day than many private factories and contractors put their men at work. Every man that went to work aided in so much to restore confidence to the community in a time of great and unexpected excitement, and to restore the City affairs to their natural condition. It is not at all improbable that out of the number of men on the Park some sympathised and perhaps were active in the proceedings of the eventful week.

The Commissioners of the Park have rules that govern their business. These rules require the punctual attendance during the hours of work of all persons in their employ; they require also of these employes a fair day's work, and they pay them promptly for it. No political interference is allowed with them, and when the men go to their homes they do as other people generally do, free from any surveillance of the Commissioners of the Park. The men are steady men of families, earning their living honestly, and are generally men of intelligence in their various vocations—gardeners, masons, stonecutters and laborers.

The Park authorities kept constant watch of what was necessary and proper for them to do to aid in the restoration of order, and they did what seemed best to be done without noise or ostentation.

REDUCTION OF THE RATES OF FREIGHT TO NEW-ORLEANS.—The rates of freight to New-Orleans, by the steamship Evening Star, have been reduced to 50 cents per foot for measurement goods, 1¾ cents per pound for weight goods, and $2 per barrel.

THE AUSTRIAN MINISTER.—Among the recent arrivals at New-York from Europe we observe the name of Count AUERSPERG, who comes as Minister Plenipotentiary of Austria, to succeed the Chevalier HULSEMANN, who recently returned home after a residence in our country in the same capacity of twenty-five years—a service not more distinguished by its unusual duration, than it was by the signal propriety and urbanity with which its delicate and sometimes difficult duties were discharged, or the esteem which the worthy gentleman commanded by his personal deportment, his intelligence, and his amiability.—Washington Intelligencer.

GRATITUDE OF THE DEAF AND BLIND AND SUFFERERS OF CHRONIC CATARRH.

A letter in the shape of a testimonial, which we believe is unequalled of its kind, magnificently got up on a fine specimen of parchment, signed by about one hundred of the most influential citizens of New-York, attested by Hon. GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor of the City, with the Grand Seal of the Mayoralty affixed, has been presented to the eminent Occulist and Aurist, Dr. VON EISENBERG, of No. 816 Broadway, in acknowledgment of his unrivalled skill and success, as to him alone belongs the merit of the wonderful cures we have recorded in our paper from time to time.

CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK.

To J. C. Von Eisenberg, M. D.:

DEAR SIR: We, the undersigned citizens of the City and State of New-York, who have experienced your unsurpassable skill, but also our friends, the uniform success which has crowned your peculiar method from which we have derived so much benefit, is such that we have no hesitation in stating that you are entitled to the full confidence of the public. Notwithstanding the many highly eulogistic and flattering testimonials as to your professional skill, and those, too from our most influential citizens, we who have shared the benefit of your skill and experience, during the last three years of your practice in this City, feel it but due to you that we should tender our meed of thanks in giving this testimonial, as a public acknowledgment of your skill, and in proof that we consider you worthy of the confidence of those who may require the services of an experienced oculist or aurist, and a gentleman richly meriting the respect of any community in which he may reside. With respect, we are yours obliged.

The following are a few of the most influential citizens whose autographs are affixed to the above letter, all of New-York, and well known:

DR. LIGHTHILL ON CATARRH.

Its Causes, Symptoms and Effects.

[Entered according to act of Congress, in the year 1863, by E. BUNFORD LIGHTHILL, M.D., in the Clerk's office of the District Court of the United States, for the Southern District of New-York.]

LETTER NO. I.

Catarrh is a disease which exists in all climates, and to which every one is liable. It is usually the result of a cold in the head, which through mismanagement, inattention, constitutional predisposition, an unfeebled state of the system, a scrofulous taint of the blood, or other unfavorable circumstances, runs into a chronic state. From this apparently trifling complaint, with which every one is forced to make acquaintance, at some season of the year or other, (and which is usually so mild that there is nothing required for its cure but the administration of such remedies as ginger-tea, hot rum, mustard foot baths, &c., &c., under the guidance of some motherly old lady) is developed a disease as frequent and offensive as it is dangerous, and which in its progress is apt to affect seriously some of the most important organs of the human economy, and to become instrumental in causing the impairment or loss of smell, taste, hearing and sight, and even the loss of life itself. This disease is popularly recognized by the name of Catarrh. Besides the cause abovementioned, Scarlet Fever, Measles, Smallpox, Diphtheria and Croup are among the occasional causes of this affection.

SYMPTOMS.

The first sensation is usually a feeling of dryness and heat in the nose, and a frequent inclination to sneezing. There is an inability to breathe freely, as the nose becomes stopped up, sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other.

Soon a clear, watery, acrid discharge makes its appearance, excoriating the nostrils and edges of the lips, which become red and somewhat swollen. After a few days the discharge becomes thick, yellowish, extremely frequent, and continues to be a marked feature of the disease, and a source of much danger and the greatest annoyance. After more or less time, it becomes purulent, highly offensive, and assumes an extremely fetid odor. It is usually so profuse as to require, when confined to the nose, the frequent application of the handkerchief, or, if it drops into the throat, which is more particularly the case, while the body is in a horizontal position, constant expectoration, and sometimes both.

Sleep is frequently disturbed by a sensation of choking, caused by the presence of the discharge in the throat. Owing to the heat in the head, the watery portion of the discharge often evaporates, and assuming a condition of solidity, is deposited upon the membrane of the nose and upper part of the throat, in the shape of crusts or hardened lumps. The accumulation of these incrustations produces a feeling of discomfort, and narrows the nasal passages so as to embarrass respiration. Therefore, frequent efforts have to be made to remove them, either by forcibly blowing the nose, or by persistent hawking—a practice as disagreeable to the one affected as it is to those around him. After the removal, that side of the incrustation which adhered to the mucous membrane will sometimes be found bloody, a fact which explains the force required for its dislodgment. During sleep these incrustations accumulate more rapidly and the feeling is therefore most uncomfortable in the morning. Sometimes all efforts to clear the throat are futile until after breakfast or after something warm is swallowed. Some patients state that they are not successful until they have swallowed some whisky or brandy. The discharge which is at first without smell, assumes in the progress of the complaint an excessively fetid odor, the breath participates in this, and becomes occasionally so revoltingly offensive as to render the patient an object of disgust to himself as well as to others. Ulceration of the mucous membrane of the nose takes place frequently, sometimes even attacking the bones, when small particles of that substance will occasionally be found mixed with the discharge. The accumulation of the discharge, together with the thickened condition of the mucous membrane, renders respiration through the nasal passages very difficult, and oftentimes impossible, necessitating respiration principally through the mouth—a method very delesterious to the general health, but more particularly so to the lungs, as will be shown hereafter. The unpleasant noise produced during sleep, known as snoring, originates from the same cause. The voice loses its musical quality and assumes a discordant, harsh and nasal character; the sense of smell becomes much impaired or entirely lost, and the same effect, though less frequent, is produced on the sense of taste. Occasionally, while blowing the nose, a crackling or bubbling sound will be heard in the ear, and hearing will be found quite thick and stopped up, but returns suddenly with something like a snapping sound. This phenomenon is usually repeated until, at one time, hearing does not return, and remains permanently injured. Noises in the head of every conceivable description will make their appearance and add to the distress of the sufferer, and hearing may be lost so gradually that a considerable degree of deafness may exist before the person is really aware of the fact. The eyes are apt to become weak, irritable and disposed to water on exposure to cold and wind, or after the slightest exertion. A pain, more or less acute, or a distressing feeling of pressure, is experienced over the eyes, and sometimes on the top or back of the head, and also pain in the face, closely resembling neuralgia, for which it is very often mistaken. The distress in the head weakens the memory and produces irritability and moroseness of disposition. The stomach generally suffers more or less, is weak and irritable; the appetite is capricious, and is nearly always bad in the morning. In severe cases, the system becomes feeble and prostrated, and there is an aversion or inability to either physical or mental exertion. Not unfrequently catarrh proves fatal, either by debilitating the system and wearing out the patient, or by traveling downward and producing throat-affections, bronchitis, and finally consumption. It may be safely asserted that after hereditary predisposition, catarrh is the most frequent and important cause of this fatal complaint.

The symptoms of catarrh vary considerably in different individuals, and the degree of their severity depends upon constitutional idiosyncrasies and various external influences. With some the complaint continues for a number of years in a mild form, and without causing any of the injurious results above described, while with others all the worst effects are produced in a very short space of time, and cases, apparently most harmless, may through imprudent exposure, additional cold, or unfavorable changes of the weather, suddenly exhibit all the violence and malignity which characterizes the severest ones.

With certain individuals the disease assumes periodicity, attacking them regularly each year, at certain seasons, as in the early part of Spring, when the roses are in bloom, and hence the name, Rose-catarrh; or, in Midsummer, during haying time, when it is known as Hay-catarrh. Some can tell the exact day and even hour of the attack. They usually claim to be entirely relieved of the difficulty in the intervals, but we have reason to suppose that symptoms of the complaint are constantly present in some mild form or other, which are roused into activity by the odor peculiar to roses or newmown hay, with which the atmosphere is impregnated during the seasons just mentioned. The comparative quiet enjoyed in the intervals, no doubt leads to the belief that the complaint has ceased entirely.

In the course of these letters we will endeavor to explain the means by which Catarrh produces the effects described; and in doing so shall be obliged to recur to previous statements. To render the subject explicit, the next letter, which will appear on Wednesday next, will contain a description of the anatomy of the nasal apparatus and the parts adjoining.

Dr. Lighthill has operated upon two of my children for cross-eyes, with perfect success. The eyes which, previous to the operation, were painfully deformed, are now perfectly straight. DAVID SELLING,
No. 89 Chambers-st.

NEW-YORK, June 17, 1863.

Dr. Lighthill has succeeded in restoring to perfect hearing my right ear, which has been deaf for some time caused by a cold. As I am obliged to leave for New-Orleans in a few days, those who may wish to make further inquiries may call on my brother, Mr. H. C. Potter, No. 78 Reade-st., firm of Streeter, Faxon & Potter, who will be happy to give any information desired.
O. O POTTER, Capt. and A. Q. M.,

NEW-YORK, April 18, 1863.

A little daughter of mine has been affected with a troublesome discharge from both ears, the result of scarlet fever. Dr. Lighthill, under whose care I placed her, has removed the discharge completely, and improved her hearing. W. H. RAYNOR, No. 6 Pine-st.

From Rev. John Nott, D. D., Professor in Union College, Schenectady.

SCHENECTADY, Jan. 17, 1863.

Dr. Lighthill—

SIR: Having been cured by you of a discharge in an ear, which has been very offensive of late, and as far back as I can remember, always more or less so; and having been entirely restored to hearing since under your care, I feel that I cannot withhold this acknowledgment from any use it may be to others, especially as I have applied in vain to my family physician and other physicians of reputation. Yours, truly, JOHN NOTT.

CATARRH CURED.

From Rev. P. R. Russell, Lynn, Mass.

I have been much troubled with catarrh of the worst type for some twenty years. It gradually grew worse, producing cough and hoarseness, destroying the sense of smell, and breaking down my general health to such a degree as to compel me to resign my pastorate, and suspend public speaking.

I made diligent use of the usual remedies, such as snuffs of different kinds, nitrate of silver, tar water, olive tar and inhalations, but without any very salutary effects. Last Summer I heard of Dr. Lighthill's successful mode of treating catarrh, visited him, and put myself under his treatment. I began immediately to improve, and this improvement has gone on to the present time. My catarrh has gradually melted away, my cough has disappeared, my voice has become natural, and I am once more able to preach the blessed Gospel. Let me advise all troubled with catarrhal difficulties to apply to Dr. Lighthill.
P. R. RUSSELL,
LYNN, Mass., Feb. 1, 1862.

This may certify that, having been afflicted during the year 1856 with severe and almost total deafness, and having tried the ordinary medical and surgical aid, under the care of those esteemed as eminent practitioners, I was induced at last to put myself under the care of Dr. E. B. Lighthill. His treatment was brief and successful. I was completely restored, and the cure is apparently permanent. I have all confidence in Dr. L.'s skill and integrity in the diseases he makes specialties.
JAMES CRUIKSHANK, LL.D.,
Editor New-York Teacher.
ALBANY, Oct. 1, 1862.

No. 12 CORTLANDT-ST., NEW-YORK, Jan. 2, 1863.

DR. E. B. LIGHTHILL—Dear Sir: It is with the kindest feelings toward you, and hoping to do service to some one who is afflicted, that I forward the inclosed document to you.

To whom it may concern: I am personally acquainted with the success which attended Dr. Lighthill's treatment in a case of discharge from the ear and chronic inflammation of the throat, and would be pleased to give further information on application.
V. D. W. WEEKES.

No. 73 GRAND-ST., NEWBURGH, N. Y., Dec. 23, 1862.

I placed my wife under the care of Dr. Lighthill for deafness in one ear of nearly three years' standing, accompanied by constant noises. I am happy to state that her hearing is now entirely restored, and the noises removed. Those residing in New-York who are desirous of further information may apply to my brother-in-law, Capt. William Edwards, at No. 95 East 34th-st., who is acquainted with the circumstances of the case.
FRANCIS GOULDY.

No. 740 WATER-ST., NEW-YORK, June 5, 1862.

Dr. Lighthill has succeeded in completely restoring my hearing, which was seriously impaired, although previous to applying to him I was treated by several physicians without the least benefit. Any further information I should be pleased to render on application to me at my residence, No. 173 Second-st., Brooklyn, E. D., or at my place of business, No. 740 Water-st.
WM. H. WATERBURY.

NEW-YORK, July 28, 1862.

I hereby certify that I have suffered during many years from trouble in hearing—one ear at last became entirely deaf, and the other so bad as to render conversation very difficult. I applied to Dr. Lighthill, of No. 34 St. Mark's-place, who, in a short time, and without pain, restored to me the use of my ears, so that I can now hear perfectly well. J. BISCO, No. 186 East 23d-st.

No. 42 FIFTH-ST., NEW-YORK, June 26, 1862.

DR. LIGHTHILL—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in testifying to the remarkable skill and judgment you displayed in the case of my daughter, who had been partially deaf, accompanied by discharge from the ears, since early infancy, and is now, thanks to your treatment, able to hear as well as any one, while her ears are free from the discharge. Although it is nearly two years since she has been under your care, her hearing remains as good, and her ears as sound, as the day she left you.

CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.
Author of "Surgical and Practical Observations on the Diseases of the Ear, with his new Mode of Treatment."

AGAIN NEW TESTIMONY.

READ.

HARLEM, July 30, 1863.

I have been deaf for over TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and Dr. VON EISENBERG operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as I never felt for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evince the highest practical ability. I hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.
WILLIAM LIDDLE,
Harlem, 126th-st., between 2d and 3d avs.

"NEW-YORK, May 6.

I was entirely deaf in my left ear, accompanied by a discharge. I placed myself under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S care, who, by his great skill, restored me to perfect hearing, in the short space of a few minutes, without giving me the slightest pain, and the discharge has ceased entirely. The Eustachian Tube, which was obliterated, is quite open, and I feel that the air-passage performs its functions. I am amply satisfied, and recommend every one suffering from impaired hearing to place themselves under the treatment of this eminent and successful physician.
THOMAS GRANAN, No. 539 6th-av."

"NEW-YORK, May 7, 1863.

I have great pleasure to testify to the skill of Dr. VON EISENBERG. I went into his office almost completely deaf, and came out with my perfect hearing. It is nearly twelve months since, and the hearing is perfect. The operation, which lasted two or three minutes in each of my ears, gave me no pain whatsoever. I, with confidence, recommend all sufferers to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S unsurpassing skill.
SAMUEL C. HUNT,
No. 6 Meserole-av., Greenpoint, L. I."

No. 136 MADISON-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain. JOHN TAYLOR,

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1863.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.
CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.

SIGHT RESTORED.

JUNE 25, 1863.

My daughter brought me to Dr. VON EISENBERG almost completely blind in both eyes. I could not bear the pain nor the light. I am completely cured by Dr. VON EISENBERG, and called now to express my gratitude to the Doctor for his skill and unremitting attention, by which I recovered one of the most precious senses to me after being deprived of it for four years. It is only due to Dr. VON EISENBERG to state that I have tried several physicians in vain. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony to Dr. VON EISENBERG'S unrivaled success to any lady or gentleman who will call on me.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.

READ.

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up, accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

SUMMER COMPLAINTS.
RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

This fashionable medicine must be taken at this season of the year, particularly whenever you have the least uncomfortable feeling from an over indulgence of fruit, or whenever Diarrhœa or pain in the bowels are the result of eating tainted food, or a relaxing condition of the atmosphere. If taken according to directions it never fails to check the disorder and allay the pain. For years has it been tested, and its reliability established beyond a doubt.

The soldiers of the Potomac can bear testimony to its efficacy in curing of Diarrhœas and Dysenteries, for they, poor fellows, paid the sutlers last Summer as high as $1, when it was beyond our power to supply them for 25 cents, for a bottle of the Relief.

For Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Cholera Morbus, use RADWAY'S READY RELIEF—chew a little gum arabic, and avoid opiate mixtures.

RADWAY & COMPANY, No. 87 Maiden-lane.

MARTIN'S LIFE CORDIAL.
THE GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY FOR CHOLERA, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, DYSENTERY, DIARRHŒA, SUMMER COMPLAINT, PAIN AND CRAMP IN THE STOMACH, SOUR STOMACH AND HEARTBURN.

It relieves those disagreeable symptoms of DYSPEPSIA, NAUSEA, and RISING of FOOD after eating, and as a SOOTHING SYRUP for CHILDREN, it has no equal. It regulates the bowels, allays pain, and under its very SOOTHING effects the child gently drops into a quiet slumber, and awakes refreshed and invigorated. It is very pleasant to the taste, and children, instead of refusing to take it, cry for the medicine after once tasting it. Call for circular and read certificates from such men as Prof. N. F. Hill, of Brown University; Rev. Horace James, of Worcester, Mass., now Chaplain of the Twenty-fifth Massachusetts, and Superintendent of Blacks, Newbern, N. C., officers in the army, and others.

N. B.—This article is warranted, even in the most obstinate cases, and Agents are particularly requested to pay back the money, where satisfactory evidence is given that the medicine has proved ineffectual.

ESPECIAL ATTENTION IS CALLED TO a slate-quarry, situate at Fairhaven, Vt., of great extent and richness, the stone OF FADING, rendering it superior to the other quarries yet discovered in this country, and possessed of remarkable advantages of location. It has been partially and skillfully worked; has an established reputation; can with a small outlay be put into extensive and complete operation, and is susceptible of yielding the amplest supplies for all the purposes for which slate is used, viz.: roofs, flagging, table-tops, billiard-beds, mantels, flooring, shelves, tanks, ashlers, &c., &c., for all which the stone of this quarry is in great request. WEST IS CONSULTED DAILY ON all diseases of a secret nature, at his private medical office, No. 27 Duane-st., between Chatham and Centre sts., and insures to those who may wish to consult him a safe and speedy cure, without mercury, hindrance from business or change of diet. Slight cases cured in 2 or 3 days. Office hours from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

ADVICE TO LADIES.—IN ALL CASES where infallible medicines are desired, or mode of treatment that never fails, call upon Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, author of "The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion," who treats female complaints exclusively. Office No. 129 Liberty-st.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Golden Regulating Pills. Infallible in correcting, regulating and removing all obstructions, from whatever cause, and they will never disappoint the anxious patient. Office No. 50 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, where Dr. WARD can be consulted, confidentially, day and evening.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.—DISEASES OF females scientifically treated by Dr. THIERS, No. 1,217 Broadway, near 26th-st., New-York. Send a red stamp for ladies' circular, and escape quackery. Board provided.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Boxes for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

MISCELLANEOUS.

YOU WANT TO SCARE MUSQUITOES.

Day and night musquitoes bite
And fill us with vexation;
Just let them smell the stuff we sell
And see their consternation.

Ladies and gentlemen who desire exemption from musquitoes, should proceed at once to the drug-store and procure a box of PAPE'S celebrated Musquito Powder, the presence of which will, in a few minutes, drive every musquito out of the room it occupies, without discommoding or annoying the persons in said room in the least degree.

Nothing at all in it poisonous or unpleasant to humanity, but something frightful to musquitoes.

Try a box, it will cost but twenty-five cents and yield you five dollars' worth of pleasure.

See what others say of it:

I have used one box of PAPE'S Musquito Powder, and can recommend it as a sure remedy to get clear of musquitoes.

The First Alabama cavalry have returned to their headquarters at Glendale, reporting ten prisoners captured. The Eighteenth Missouri infantry, in their recent raid in the vicinity of Ripley, captured a Captain and five privates—recruits.

The cavalry expedition from Corinth released some two hundred and fifty conscripts taken by FORREST. A company of sixty Union men came into Corinth Tuesday P. M. from Wayne's Ford. NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Aug. 18.

THE FIVE-TWENTIES.

It is understood that the original arrangement made by Mr. CHASE with JAY COOKE & Co., as agents for the sale of the five-twenty loan, expired by limitation on the 1st of August. Since that day their agency has been continued subject to the possible adoption of a new plan of selling to the people the Government credits. The scheme said now to be most favored in the Treasury Department is to make the National Banks throughout the country, organized under Mr. CHASE'S financial measure, agents for the five-twenties, as well as of any new loans, at a compensation of one quarter per cent—the banks being compelled to expend one-sixteenth per cent. in advertising and other necessary expenses. JAY COOKE & Co.'s subscriptions up to and including Saturday last, have been $250,103,350. The deliverances from the Treasury upon their orders are $25,000,000 short-principally for want of blanks.

MOVEMENTS OF MOSEBY.

The waggish MOSEBY, with part of his gang, on Sunday night encamped two and a half miles from Upton's Hill, almost within range of the guns on the Washington fortifications. On Sunday afternoon he stopped a funeral procession on its way from Lewinsville to Washington, and stole the horses attached to the hearse. He afterwards visited Falls Church and amused himself by taking observations of our new contraband farms.

A REBEL CAVALRY RAID EXPECTED.

Advices from the army to-night state that the impression prevails that the rebels are preparing for a cavalry movement in our rear to destroy the railroad. We are not asleep, they will find.

Equilibrium of the Republic—The State of Western Virginia.

BY EX-GOVERNOR CHARLES GILPIN.

This new State, formed of that portion of Old Virginia which lies within the Alleghany Mountains, and contributes its waters to the Mississippi Basin, has, by act of Congress, been admitted into the Union. This diminution in area of an ancient Atlantic State, occurring simultaneously with a radical change in the geographical distribution of population on our Continent, draws attention to facts of more profound significance than have hitherto attracted notice.

The States and population of the Basin of the Mississippi are thus extracted from the census of 1860:

Ohio	2,339,593	Minnesota	172,022
Indiana	1,350,941	Pennsylvania, 21 counties	727,256
Illinois	1,711,753	West Virginia, 39 counties	280,691
Kentucky	1,155,713	North Carolina, 10 counties	79,077
Tennessee	1,109,341	Alabama	964,266
Mississippi	790,396	Texas	602,432
Louisiana	709,290	Nebraska	13,000
Arkansas	435,427	Colorado, 13 counties	27,000
Missouri	1,162,317	Dacotah	4,500
Kansas	107,110	Indian Territory	95,000
Iowa	674,968
Wisconsin, 31 counties	428,158
New-York, 8 counties	430,787
Total			15,392,543

STATES OF THE PLATEAU AND PACIFIC DECLIVITY.

California, Oregon, Nevada, Washington,	Utah, New-Mexico—⅗, Colorado—⅗.
Population	666,980

STATES OF THE ST. LAWRENCE BASIN.

Vermont—⅗, New-York—⅕, Michigan, Wisconsin—⅕,	Ohio—1-6, Indiana—1-7, Illinois—1-20.

STATES OF THE ATLANTIC DECLIVITY.

Population	14,666,149

In its original, the United States of America was composed exclusively of States bordering on the Atlantic Ocean, and was created under the auspices of a population and interests restricted to the longitudinal margin between the Alleghanies and the seas. Without tracing through each decennial census the gradual entrance into the Federal Congress of new geographical elements and power, the following table of population for 1860 will exhibit the relative numbers as distributed in harmony with the physical geography of nature:

States of the Mississippi Basin	15,392,543
States of the Plateau and Pacific Declivity	67,980
Total population	16,060,523
States of the St. Lawrence Basin	1,867,955
States of the Atlantic Declivity	14,666,149
Total population	16,534,104

This immense expansion in geographical area, together with the prodigious growth in energy, population and power which accompanies it, has profoundly modified the domestic relations of the heretofore harmonious family of the American people. Disorder and violence have always marked the eras when, with a growing empire, the scheme of government ceasing to harmonize with the energetic temper of the people, has become antagonistic to their instincts and repressive to progress. Revolutions, modest in their origin, begin by resistance to oppression; gathering strength, they reveal and purge out the causes of oppression. The legislation of the Federal Government has had for sixty years from its origin a proclivity to encourage the navigation and commerce of the sea, and to restrict this encouragement to the shores of the Atlantic Ocean. The prolific growth of the population and energies of the interior has outgrown the limited demands of that ocean and its population; the restriction of sufficient outflow to the other flank upon the Pacific becomes a check to progress, and has all the consequences of an oppressive monopoly. The statistics of ocean commerce, its growth being the special favorite of the Federal Government and policy, have been pampered by all forms of partial legislation. The statistics and growth of commerce, navigation and transportation in the interior of the continent have been the object of neglect and depression. Yet in 1860 we find the aggregate value of interior relations, as expressed in dollars, to be five times in amount to the exterior relations, similarly estimated. In population, production and commerce the interior is now prodigiously in the ascendant.

It is manifest that immense modifications of the Federal power have become imperatively necessary to correct this departure between the Government and the people, and to adjust the equilibrium. One profound cause of the sanguinary discord that now tears our country is here discernible. If we suppose ourselves to have reached the coming centennial anniversary of July 4, 1876, and take a retrospective glance, the magnitude of the modifications necessary to our continued harmonious union will display themselves at a glance. Geographical changes in the locality and administration of the Federal power, as great as those which transferred it from London to Philadelphia and Washington, reveal themselves and the necessity of such modifications dictates itself with mathematical exactness. As a fact of preëminent significance, occurs the accession to the States of the Mississippi basin of Western Virginia, and the addition of two Federal Senators to this geographical division of our country. This unchains the political spell of hide-bound routine and repression to add new forces to the area and energies of progress.—Colorado Republican.

EXTENSIVE CONFLAGRATION IN SIXTH-AVENUE.

Twenty-five Horses Burned to Death—Several Stables and Dwelling-Houses Destroyed.

About 4½ o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the Tattersal stables, situated on Sixth-avenue near Thirty-ninth-street. The buildings were built of wood, three stories in height, and extended seventy-five feet on Sixth-avenue, and one hundred feet on Thirty-ninth-street. The entire structure was destroyed. Twenty-five valuable horses, out of the sixty-five which were in the building at the time the fire broke out, were also burned. These horses were valuable fancy and carriage horses, owned by gentlemen in the immediate neighborhood. Those which were destroyed were valued at $10,000, upon which, it is believed, there is very little insurance. Mr. G. ELSEBER lost a span valued at $2,000; Mr. WEST, one worth $800; Mr. CHARTIER'S loss on horses is $1,000; Mr. WELLS, $600, and several other gentlemen had very fine animals burned.

The stables were owned by Mr. J. M. BIXBY, and were valued at about $3,000. They are a total loss. WM. SPRAGUE was the occupant. His loss will amount to about $5,000. He is insured in the Jersey City and Hamilton Insurance Companies.

The flames then extended to the brown-stone private residences on Thirty-eighth-street.

Nos. 59, 57, 55, 61 and 63 on this street were very much damaged, all the upper portion of them being destroyed, and the furniture and fixtures therein greatly injured.

No. 63 is owned and occupied by ELIZABETH and E. J. COOPER. Their house damaged to the amount of $3,000. The loss on furniture is about $1,500. Insured in the Peter Cooper Insurance Company for $6,000.

No. 61, occupied by H. SHELTON, was damaged to the amount of $2,500; loss on furniture and fixtures, $1,000.

No. 59, owned and occupied by LIVINGSTON, LIVINGSTON, was damaged to the amount of $1,500; loss on furniture, $2,000.

No. 57, occupied by SNYDER & ASHMIRE; his damage on furniture is about $590. This building is owned by WM. P. LEE, and is damaged to the extent of $1,000.

No. 55 is owned and occupied by F. R. GROZE. The damage to building and furniture is about $500. Insured for $6,000 in the Union Mutual Insurance Company.

The building No. 658 Sixth-avenue, occupied by CHAS. S. BRODT, was damaged to the amount of $500. Insured for $1,200 in the St. Nicholas Insurance Company. There were several other buildings considerably damaged in the vicinity, but the names of the occupants we could not ascertain.

When the second floor of the stables fell, a number of firemen were in and around the building, and several of them were severely injured. HENRY A. LINEHAN, Foreman of No. 20 Engine, was badly bruised; MICHAEL GREEN and ANDREW GOODIN, also firemen, were considerably bruised by the falling walls.

The fire originated in the hay loft of the stables, and is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. Fire-Marshal BAKER will investigate the case to-day.

ENGLAND AND JAPAN.

Strange and Absurd Charge by a British Functionary.

Americans Accused of Supplying the Japanese With Arms.

HONG KONG, Thursday, May 14, 1863.

The subject which just now attracts the attention of the East is the critical condition of affairs in Japan. In my last, your readers were furnished with an official statement of the ultimatum presented to the Japanese Government by Col. NEALS, the British Charge d'Affairs. The 20 days' time given for a decision expired on the 26th of April, but upon application by the Japanese for an extension, the period was extended 15 days. The English seem to doubt their present capacity to carry their threats into effect, and Admiral KUPER has informed the foreign merchants at Yokohama that it was doubtful whether they could be protected in the event of coercive movements being adopted.

At the latest accounts the Tycoon was at Miake with the Mikado and the principal Daimois of the Empire. There is said to be much difference of opinion among them as to the course to be adopted; but there is a large concoure of troops at Yedo, and the most active preparations are being made to resist. It is currently reported and generally believed that there has been some sharp correspodence between the American Minister and the British Charge d'Affairs in reference to large importations of arms and ammunition, which American merchants were making at the present time. It is to be doubted whether any large importations have been made; but there is no question that all munitions of war have found a ready sale, and this it was not within the power of Mr. Pruyn to prevent. The correspondence of the British charge d' affaires and the British merchants at Yokohama would seem to show a change in the plans of Admiral KUPER. Coercive operations are at first to be mainly confined to a blockade of Yedo and the seizure of the Loo Choo Islands, belonging to Prince SATSUMA.

There are rumors here that the aspect of affairs is more unfavorable even than the published reports would warrant. The Tycoon is said not to be indisposed for a struggle, although he doubts the capacity of the empire to sustain it. Leading Daimios declare that that they have nothing to fear from isolation, which is what they desire, and that they are fully able to meet any body of soldiers which may land. There is no doubt but that they are, in every respect, more able to contest European valor than any other Asiatic nation. They are as yet untried, but their drill is thorough and their artillery practice is said to be excellent.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Winter Garden.

Of the noble army of martyrs that constitutes the Spring and Summer management of the Winter Garden—and much do we owe to that plucky and plucked band—Mr. HUMPHEY BLAND, who commenced operations on Monday evening, is probably the last. The theatre, like all others of its class on Broadway, must, in the course of a month or so, drift into the regular Winter campaign, which, we presume, will be under the direction of Mr. JACKSON. Let us, therefore, as a preliminary to the consideration of the bill offered by the new management hasten to do an act of justice to Mr. BLAND. He has had the theatre brushed out and scrubbed. Slight as this attention may seem it is a very important one in the comfort of the frequenters of the theatre;—a theatre which, we are sorry to say, amongst its other economies has not hesitated to include soap and water.

Mr. BLAND'S bright particular star, is Mrs. D. P. BOWERS, a Philadelphian artist of note, who has recently been received with favor in England. Why this should be regarded as an indorsement of merit we are at a loss to understand, for if we take London as a standard of excellence in that country, there is certainly no city in the world that is so contented with mediocrity, or puts up with so much thereof. On the other hand, it must be acknowledged that the Londoners are quick to appreciate talent wherever they can find it, and to this circumstance may be ascribed the favor with which several female artists have been received there. Mrs. D. P. BOWERS belongs to the best of these histrionic representatives of our country. She is a meritorious artist, with every natural requisite for speedily becoming a great one. Her voice is powerful and singularly melodious, her utterance distinct and delightful and without affectation; her action free, unembarrassed and natural. The catalogue might be extended indefinitely, but all technical merit is expressed in the word intelligent, and this may be applied safely to the impersonation of Mrs. BOWERS. It is a pity that an artist of so much merit should be compelled to seek strange audiences, for to please a multitude of tastes there must be some sacrifice of principle, some lowering of correct perception. Mrs. BOWERS' proper place is not in the muddy firmament of the provinces, but in a company of first-rate excellence, where the moderation of study and the gift of observation would be accepted at their real value.

It is a pity, also, that the lady had not a better piece wherein to speak to her friends. "Natolie" lurches awkwardly toward the sensation school; and, in fact, is rather Bowerysh in the first act. The French Revolution can only be handled successfully by a first-rate writer, and Mr. CHARLES SELBY, who is the author of "Natalie," has never ranked as such. He was an actor, and a good judge of actors' situations. Thus, the piece, while it is coarse and common-place in treatment, possesses a few scenes that are really powerful. In other words, the broad ideas are better than the elaboration. Natolie, the heroine, is a lady who is saved from death by a disguised aristocrat, who claims her as his wife just as she is about to enter the death-barge of the Loire. He himself is shortly afterward arrested, and is immediately separated from the bride that he has lately won. Natolie hears nothing of him until the next act when she is married to another. She supposes, of course, that he has perished, and only knows of his existence by a letter announcing his speedy arrival in England (where the scene is laid) for the purpose of claiming his bride. The reading of this letter was one of the best points of Mrs. BOWERS performance, and illustrated all the special excellencies of style to which we have referred. The intensity of the remaining scenes may easily be inferred. They are constructed with the one idea of effect, and with material that has often been used for the same purpose, but is not yet, it seems, worn out.

The piece was excellently acted. Mrs. ANNA COWELL made her début in New-York as Mrs. Dalrymple, and played with much grace and ease. Messrs. LINGHAM, STODDARD, HALE and DAVENPORT were excellent in their several rôles, and the scenery was sufficient. There appeared to be some uncertainty in the period of the costumes. However the piece was a success.
